SALIENT FACTS OF BONUS PAYMENTS VOTED RECENTLY

Since the bonus bill has been given the New York State Veterans Board, here are salient facts that should be noted to all veterans' attention.

Application forms will not be accepted if they are submitted prior to January 1, 1948. It is expected that the forms will be available all over the State shortly before that date. They will be distributed to all offices of the State Division of Veterans Affairs, County and City Service Agencies, and by veterans organizations.

That means in Allegany county that they'll be available at the Allegany County Veterans' Service Agency and its branch offices in Wellsville and Cuba; at an American Legion Post, and at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post at Wellsville.

A duplicate photostat copy of both sides of the discharge or separation papers must be attached to the application blank. If the veteran served outside the continental limits of the U.S. and this fact doesn't appear on his discharge papers, he must submit with the application photostats or certified copies of the official record showing his service outside the continental limits of the U.S.

If the original discharge form has been lost and it wasn't recorded in the County Clerk's office, a Certificate of Service may be obtained by writing to the appropriate branch of service, giving the veteran's full name, serial number and home address.

Christian Science goes to the bottom of mental action, and reveals the theodicy which indicates the rightness of all divine action, as the emanation of divine Mind, and the consequent wrongness of the opposite so-called action,—evil, occultism, necromancy, mesmerism, animal magnetism, hypnotism" (pp. 183, 104).

Gross Felten

An impressive service at Trinity Lutheran Church in Gardinerville on Saturday, April 24, Miss Edith Felten became the bride of the Rev. Richard Gross.

The bridal party entered the church as Mrs. Herbert Felten of Chambers, Calif., played "Take Thou My Hand" and "Lead Me," and just before the ceremony, Mrs. Carl F. sang "O Perfect Love," with a Herbert Felten at the organ. The bride was lovely in an ivory tulle and satin gown, made with bodice and sweetheart neck, sleeves and a full, floor length skirt of silk tulle, and fell of and of bouvardia. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Ruth Felten, attendant, wore a gown of tulle with full skirt and a sweetheart neck. Her hair was styled in a bouffant of pink and white tulle. Sweetpeas were the bridesmaids.

The Rev. Richard Gross, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, officiated at the ceremony. The bride's father, Mr. Carl F. Felten, and mother, Mrs. Edith Felten, were seated at the head of the table.

Marshall Plan Complexities Involve Vast Field of Work

By BANKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—There never was a better example of the difficulties encountered in a democratic government than those which are being faced on its debate today.

I doubt if any parliamentary body in the world, or any despotic ruler, ever faced a problem more complicated in detail, wider in its scope, or more important in its potential results than the Marshall program for aiding Europe.

Since the idea of the Marshall plan was first broached, I have had opportunity to gain a few short but very intimate glimpses into the machinery which contributed to its completion. Some of us, for example, were given a very condensed and revealing personal account of the last, long, earnest sessions in Washington where the representatives of the 16 European countries sat down in the state department to carry on their daily and sometimes nightly,

In the course of this meeting and several others, we have had a chance to learn many more details of this complicated plan and its evolution that possibly can be reported here. And yet these meetings could reveal only tiny fragments of the tremendous amount of research, analysis, study and discussion which was reduced to a few salient points, and presented to committees of congress in Secretary of State Marshall's final report.

Secretary Marshall, himself, had to go through a long period of briefing. In his last news conference before he met with congressional committeemen, he had, as he put it, "immense ground to cover."

These discussions went through three phases. The first phase was a careful expansion of details lacking in the formal report drawn up by the Paris conference.

You would be surprised at the number and scope of those details, many of which had to await special memoranda from technical experts in the countries involved. For instance, we can imagine a conversation something like this:

"Just a moment," one of the American officials says, with his pencil poised over the pad in front of him, "You say that it will be impossible to increase the output of the mines in Country X without additional mining machinery. Marshall Target Of Press Critics

I mentioned Secretary of State Marshall and his last news conference before meeting with the congressional committees. There has been growing criticism of Mr. Marshall here in Washington. It took form after the conference and has appeared in editorials.

One Washington editorialist complained that Marshall won't talk, that the newsmen at the conference drew a blank because Marshall was uncommunicative. The Wedemeyer question came up, for example. Marshall would say nothing. He added, not petulantly, but in a tone that forbade further questioning: "Furthermore, I don't feel obliged to report on every conversation I have with the President." Period.

That was quite true. He doesn't and shouldn't. Any secretary of state who did feel obliged to import all information ...

However, that phase was concluded without any serious casualties. In fact, I understand it gradually blended into the third phase, which was a two-sided discussion, bringing out exactly how the Paris report was formulated. Whether, for instance, it was a synthetic combination of various separate viewpoints and separate plans, or whether the parts were fitted together with due relation to each other so that they could be taken apart and put together again. The Americans took it apart and, we were told, it went together all right. As I say, this was a two-sided discussion, and I understand that it developed a common appraisal of the plan. In other words, when it was completed, either American criticism had been satisfied, or the European viewpoint had been sufficiently altered to achieve harmonious agreement.

In setting forth their views, certain "main factors" were emphasized by the Europeans.

Finally, it was the opinion of Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman that emergency European relief "can be substantially met," despite supply problems in this country.

China, Too

Virtually forgotten under the press of urgent affairs in Europe is the problem of China — ravaged, still contorted in war, constantly backsliding into greater political and economic corruption.

As a modicum of aid and comfort to that Eastern nation, Secretary Marshall has proposed a 300-million-dollar aid program to be administered in conjunction with the European phase of the Marshall plan.

At the same time, Marshall held to his stand that the suppressed report of Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer on conditions in China would not be made public. He intimated that it drew such a dismal picture that to release the report would be harmful both to the U. S. and China.

any serious casualties. In fact, I understand it gradually blended into the third phase, which was a two-sided discussion, bringing out exactly how the Paris report was formulated. Whether, for instance, it was a synthetic combination of various separate viewpoints and separate plans, or whether the parts were fitted together with due relation to each other so that they could be taken apart and put together again. The Americans took it apart and, we were told, it went together all right.

As I say, this was a two-sided discussion, and I understand that it developed a common appraisal of the plan. In other words, when it was completed, either American criticism had been satisfied, or the European viewpoint had been sufficiently altered to achieve harmonious agreement.

In setting forth their views, certain "main factors" were emphasized by the Europeans.

In the first place, in normal times, Western Europe traditionally imported more goods from the western hemisphere than they exported to us. However, this imbalance was compensated for by the trade between the Far East and Western Europe. This trade furnished Western Europe with sufficient dollars to make up part of the difference.

Secondly, in normal times, particularly in the case of Great Britain, there was the factor of "invisible income." This "invisible income" was made up, in part, of investments held by individual Britons and the British government, of the income in commissions and other fees which the British and other nations earned as a clearing-house of merchandise, through the use of shipping facilities and many other services which it was convenient and practical for European nations to provide for the world. But this "invisible income" has largely disappeared now.

Many of the traits that make a man a splendid leader of armies, a strategist, likewise make it impossible for him to cater to a public which reacts only to emotions—not as armor plate reacts to shellfire. You cannot land a million men on a foreign beachhead, nor feed and clothe and care for them so they can carry out their gigantic mission, with a glib tongue, a charming smile or a keen sense of publicity that gets your campaign on the first pages.

Secretary of State Marshall is a great planner and an excellent executor of plans. It is up to someone else to "sell" those plans.

CORN DOWN:

Semi-Finals

There was a smattering of bad news in the agriculture department's semi-final crop report of the year. It had to do with corn and winter wheat.

The 1947 U. S. corn crop now stands at an estimated 2,447,422,000 bushels, a decrease of 11,252,000 bushels from a forecast made a month ago. That is slightly below the 10-year (1936-45) average of 2,639,102,000, and far under last year's record yield of more than 3.2 billion bushels.

Hopes for another bumper wheat crop next year received a thorough dampening with the department's announcement that about 25 per cent of the intended winter wheat acreage in the important great plains department of agriculture spokesmen estimated that there will be a cattle population of only 77 million on January 1, 1948—8.6 million below the all-time high of 85.6 million on January 1, 1945.

As a result, consumers will be short of beef, pork and poultry this year—there just won't be as much to go around.

RED ACTION:

Riots, Terror

Communist-borne trouble arose was on the increase in France and Italy.

Spreading paralysis gripped French port city of Marseilles as workers responded to a strike call by Communist leaders after a day of rioting in which one person was fatally injured and six others seriously wounded.

In Milan, Italy, Communists sacked an anti-Red newspaper and attacked a police station in a state of near terror. The course of rioting which gripped the city in a state of near terror demanded the immediate suppression of newspapers "with a Communist character" and the once of "all persons suspected of their activity against the state."

In both Marseille and Milan, Communists seized upon unimportant incidents as a means to magnify them to a point where they could incite violence.

Western Europe traditionally imported more goods from the western hemisphere than they exported to us. However, this imbalance was compensated for by the trade between the Far East and Western Europe. This trade furnished Western Europe with sufficient dollars to make up part of the difference.

But this "invisible income" has largely disappeared now.

We asked one of the European representatives what had happened to it. The partial answer of course, was obvious: With world trade at a standstill, many of the services no longer are being provided. And as to the personal holdings, one European representative said: "Before the war, I owned 100 shares of A. T. & T., and 20 shares of General Motors. But they had to go long before the war was over—the interruption of my earning power, high taxes and so on."

Still another important factor is the consideration of the normal trade which formerly existed between Eastern and Western Europe.

It was interesting to note at this point, that considerable optimism was expressed by the Europeans

OH, HAPPY UNITED STATES

Wild Animals Put Bite on India

Do you pity the poor American pedestrian who figures to get his lumps from being booted in the derriere by a rampaging motorist when he crosses the street? Think nothing of it.

In India red-faced monkeys, savage tigers, wild elephants, prowling bears and poisonous snakes kill more than a million persons every year.

Like the traffic menace in the United States, this situation at last has attracted the attention of the central and provincial governments in India. They have declared the monkeys which invade the Hindu city of Benares and bite pilgrimaging worshippers to death "one of the greatest menaces of our time from the animal kingdom." Although a handsome bounty is paid for every monkey's head—$10 for a male and $8 for a female—efforts to end the monkey menace are up against strong religious sentiment. Hindus consider the monkeys sacred.

Yet, in Benares, children are being pushed from temple steps to their death by wild monkeys almost daily. Last year monkeys killed 107 persons there.

And there are other hazards which nature in the raw holds for the Indians. Wild elephants in the provinces of Assam, to the north, and Mysore, to the south, move in great groups, trampling villages, destroying crops and leaving behind a grim toll of human lives. On the slopes of the Himala mountains black bears killed more than 3,000 persons in 1945 alone. Special anti-bear squads now have organized to combat this terror.

Just 100 miles from the great metropolis of Bombay, in western India, can be heard the chilling cry of the man-eating tiger. Every 200,000 Indians fall prey to the tiger. Most dreaded of all, however, is the hooded, glossy king cobra and the smaller brethren. There are estimated 40 million snakes in India—and every year they kill 4 million people. Civilization has quite a ways at that.

THE FICTION CORNER 'THE BARGAIN' BY MRS. W. E. ABBOTT

Emma Holmes awakened with difficulty from her early morning sleep. That noise! What was it? It was like water swirling rapidly down a drain. Her brain cleared, and she heaved her great bulk out of bed. Only one thing sounded like that!

The outlaw pig belonging to Ed Slatterly was raiding her garden again. Probably wanted more of her prize watermelons. She'd show her! Hastily she thrust her feet into slippers, put a house dress over her nightgown, and started for the door. There she was, the demon! She'd know that bony, stubborn figure anywhere.

"Get out of there, you ornery creature!" Emma picked up the nearest stone and threw it with all her strength at the skinny sow. The pig grunted and ran toward the hole under the garden fence, which she had prepared for herself. She squeezed her gaunt frame under the wire, grunting noisily. Emma threw another stone, and the sow trotted off down the road toward home.

Emma sputtered to Seth about her breakfast.

"She's against everything I've ever seen in nature," complained Emma. "Eats watermelons, of all things! Of all the truck I have in my garden, those melons are the things I prize most. And doesn't that cussed pig know that? She makes for the melons every time."

aimin' to give you a piece of that meal." Emma softened. She walked inside and looked at the meat. It looked good. "Watermelons must make good hog feed," muttered Emma to herself.

"Ma'am?" said Ed Slatterly.

"I said that would be nice," replied Emma. "We'd love having some fresh meat. It's very kind of you."

With the help of one of the boys, Ed took the pig down from the hook and cut off one of the hams for Emma.

"That's too much," she said firmly.

"No, Ma'am," he said. "I have a lot of young 'uns, and they eat hearty, but the weather is warm.

"Leave her be. I'll be down in the yard, his overalls are over his pajamas. He sheepish.

"It's all right, Emma."

"That's our pig now?"

"Ours?" cried Emma. "No, not that!"

Seth ran his hands through his hair. "You can't see. You can't bear seeing that hog look ing the way she did, all run down and thin and neglected. So I took one of our pigs to Slatterly for him. That gave them meat, and I thought I could maybe fatten her up."

Emma stared at him open-mouthed.

"Although I gotta admit, she is open-outlaw," said Seth. "May have to get rid of her after all."

"May have to!" cried Emma. "May have to, indeed! What about my watermelons? You certainly will have to!"

Seth grinned and wiggled his toes in the grass like a small boy.

"Whatever you say, Emma," he through the noise and several of the Slatterly children were playing around the cabin. They were handsome children, in spite of their dirty, unkempt appearance.

"Where's your Dad?" said Emma shortly to the oldest boy.

"Paw!" yelled the boy.

Ed Slatterly appeared at the door of a shed behind the house. He was a small, wiry man, wearing a dark jacket over his waist. He wasn't smoking tobacco. She walked towards him. Over his shoulder she looked inside the shed. There hung a butchered pig.

"Oh," she said. "That your pig, Ed?"

"Yes, Ma'am," he replied. "I was when she went to bed that night.

Early the next morning she woke up in confusion. That peculiar sound again. Water, going rapidly round and round in a drain. No! It couldn't be! She sat up. There wasn't another pig anywhere that sounded quite like that.

She bounded out of bed and hit the floor with a thud, slipping, the loose dress over her nightgown, the flying trip to the garden. She rubbed her eyes. It was Slatterly's sow! There couldn't be two such pigs in all the world.

Dazedly she picked up a stone to throw at the creature.

"Emma," Seth's voice was calling from the bedroom window.

Don't Forget to Compliment Them

One of the most effective salesmen I have ever known accomplishes his near miracles in business, not by any intellectual system, but by following one of the simplest of all plans I know for impressing others favorably.

He compliments his customers. They like it so much they buy from him. They also form an attachment to him which makes it next to impossible for a competitor to come in and make sales.

All great leaders from the beginning of the world have found that if they can compliment others properly and judiciously they are employing an aid which is beyond price it is so valuable.

person sees a reflection of his own desire. And that's what makes us like others—a reflection of the things we like most in ourselves.

Of course I am not recommending flattery. When a compliment degenerates, it becomes mere flattery; it is not a boon but a handicap to friendship. You can't trust flattery. We feel we can trust compliments.

This salesman I am telling you about never makes the mistake of flattery to his customers.

"What I try to do with every man is find out what he wants to hear about himself," he explained. "I never compliment him upon things that are obvious—that others compliment him upon. About those things he gets tired of hearing. But all of us yearn to have somebody tell us about some other excellence of ours—one that isn't quite so obvious."

That is a shrewd observation on human nature. I remember reading how bored John D. Rockefeller was when complimented upon his business success. He wanted to hear something else. The thing he wanted to hear was praise about his household economics. And Andrew Carnegie wasn't nearly so proud of having given away so many millions of dollars as he was of his ability as a public speaker.

The point I am making is that if you want your compliments to do the most good you have to ferret out little things which the other person would like to hear somebody say about him.

The next thing my salesman friend does is to make his compliments ring true. He isn't fulsome about them ever. He is truthful. He can go into any company and be liked and popular because in any company he finds something nice to compliment everybody upon.

The reason he finds these things is that he looks for them. There isn't any reason why you shouldn't do just as much is there?

CHAMPION Plowmen know that the performance of their tractor tires can "make" or "break" them in a plowing match. They must have tires that take hold and pull — on soft ground — on hard ground — on sod — on stubble. They must have tires that take a full, clean bite, a center bite — tires that plow right through under all conditions.

That's why winners in the three big national matches this fall (Big Rock, Wheeland, Illinois and Webster City, Iowa), plowed on Firestone Tires. They, like most other contestants in these big events, could not afford to gamble with a "broken center" tire that might lay them down by clogging up with trash, slipping and spinning.

A VOICE FROM THE COUNTRY

Complex Economy Threatens Small Business Enterprise

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on current problems by Louis Bromfield, one of America's leading writers.)

By LOUIS BROMFIELD
Released by WNU Features

There are times when it seems that the pattern of our agricultural and business life appears not to have kept pace with the development of industry and technology.

The old frontier of the general farm is one case in point. Another is the field of distribution of all goods, but notably of food. The old-fashioned general farm, the small business enterprise has in the past been a great bulwark of American independence and character, and frequently of our economy as well.

The question is whether our present and complex industrialized economy any longer can afford these remnants of another day, and whether the proprietors of the general farm and the small business enterprise can survive much longer the economic strain placed upon them. Tied in with the problems of both is the question of distribution, notoriously expensive and inefficient, and in the actual process of painfully adjusting itself.

It is not only that the world has shrunk immensely in our time but also that the United States has shrunk with it. The problem of adjusting wages and purchasing power to the prices of all commodities has become the most urgent one now confronting the free enterprise system. Specialization and effnotoriously expensive and inefficient, and in the actual process of painfully adjusting itself.

It is not only that the world has shrunk immensely in our time but also that the United States has shrunk with it. The problem of adjusting wages and purchasing power to the prices of all commodities has become the most urgent one now confronting the free enterprise system. Size, specialization and efficiency all have their bearing upon living costs, and notably upon food prices.

The old-fashioned general farm is an inefficient unit in our highly complex interrelated production economy. So, too, is the small retail enterprise competing with the efficiency, buying and distributing power of the vast, well-integrated chain stores, super-markets and cooperatives.

The economic pressures of our century are all toward bigness, efficiency and low-cost production and distribution, exactly as the rewards of the automobile industry have gone to mass-production, assembly-line big companies which produced fine big cars at high quality for a low price. In the problem of food costs this efficiency begins at the farm, extends through the old field of distribution to the retail outlet.

Cycle of High Costs.
The high cost of food begins on the farm through inefficiency and low production per acre, which produces high costs per man hour and per commodity unit. It continues through the field of distribution which involves handling—many times—commission merchants, market rigging, and at times a spread of price between producer and consumer of several hundred per cent.

The point is that small retailers as well as the great chain stores or cooperatives are a link in this chain, but that the small retailer is largely at the mercy of market rigging, commission merchants, expensive

"In a sense, the small distributor, as exemplified by the corner grocery store, and the old-fashioned general farmer, are, like the horse and buggy, relics of a former day."

sumer is not concerned with these things. He is concerned solely with making his dollar buy as much as possible, both in quality and quantity.

The fundamental point is that the pressures against the small enterprises are economic and, therefore, extremely powerful. In a sense, the small distributor, as exemplified by the corner grocery store, and the old-fashioned general farmer are, like the horse and buggy, relics of a former day. This was before the world and this nation had shrunk, when the retailer bought his food directly from the farmer, and food commodities were not shipped from rural communities into the cities, and then back again to the towns. In those days a great many of these enormous distribution markups between. This markup the big handlers are able largely to evade by direct mass buying shipping. The forces of economy and of mass production and distribution are difficult or impossible to resist.

Of course, it would be possible for government to subsidize small, inefficient, handicapped operator with taxpayers' money very largely that is what happened in the case of the progressive, inefficient farmer and the absentee-landlord-tenant systems in agriculture. But the consumer takes the beating because he continues to pay not only high prices but also taxes in the form of subsidies out of the other pocket.

It won't be long, however, that the children will be home with their constant demands on the cookie jar. It means, too, there will be plenty of entertaining, perhaps not of the elaborate variety, but evenings in front of the cozy warmth of the fireplace, when there should be a simple cookie or cake to serve.

Wise cooks will plan to do a lot of their holiday baking early. Some of the cookies and confections can be made early, and they will taste so much the better for it. Then, too, most women like to make such things as pudding and fruit cake before the holidays so as to relieve the strain on the kitchen later on.

If you're making fruit cake or pudding, chop the fruits the day before and prepare your molds. Then the

The high cost of food begins at the of distribution to the retail outlet.

Circle of High Costs.
The high cost of food begins on the farm through inefficiency and low production per acre, which produces high costs per man hour and per commodity unit. It continues through the field of distribution which involves handling—many times—commission merchants, market rigging, and at times a spread of price between producer and consumer of several hundred per cent.

The point is that small retailers as well as the great chain stores or cooperatives are a link in this chain, but that the small retailer is largely at the mercy of market rigging, commission merchants, expensive small-lot distribution and multiple distribution agencies (that is, the great wholesale buyers and commission merchants, the local wholesale distributors, et cetera—each of whom takes a cut eventually paid for by the consumer or in losses by the small retail proprietor).

At the same time, the small retailer is a victim of the economic squeeze created by the ability of the chain stores, super-markets and cooperatives to set low prices because of smaller purchase and distribution cost. Rarely, save in deluxe areas like New York's Madison avenue, can the small unit retailer set a price higher in his community than that of the bigger organizations, although his costs may be much greater.

The economic tendency and pressures today are certainly all in the direction of low costs, high efficiency and the bigness which creates them. The consumer is concerned almost wholly with the goal of buying the best quality for the lowest price. Certainly super-markets, chain stores and cooperatives are growing and will continue to do so, taxed or tax-free in the case of big cooperatives, for even with an enormous government subsidy between. This markup the big handlers are able largely to make by direct mass buying and shipping. The forces of economy and of mass production and distribution are difficult or impossible to resist.

Of course, it would be possible for government to subsidize small, inefficient, handicraft operator with taxpayers' money very largely that is what happened in the case of the progressive, inefficient farmer and the absentee-landlord tenant and systems in agriculture. But the consumer takes the beating because he continues to pay not only high prices but also taxes in the form of subsidies out of the other pocket.

It is notable that the National Poultrymen's association recently urged congress to drop all poultry and egg price-support measures so that the subsidized, inefficient producer would be eliminated and the prices would find a lower level to the consumer, but one still profitable to the efficient producer.
Sentimentally, I hate to see the passing of the old-fashioned general farm and the corner grocery store.
Both institutions gave me much happiness and friendliness in my youth, but I am afraid there isn't any longer much place for them in our highly complex, economic civilization in a shrunken world. In the end, we shall be forced to catch up with our times by the sheer ruthless force of economics and because the consumer no longer can afford either institution.

Free Licenses Give Indians 'Pretty' Cars

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.—Florida's dwindling band of Seminole Indians once again will be able to "dress up their cars and make them look pretty" as a result of a long-standing agreement on automobile license plates.

The Redmen have at least one advantage over the "palefaces" in that they don't have to pay for their license plates. The policy was started about 17 years ago by Gov. David Sholtz, who wanted to help the Seminoles with their problems. Sholtz took his entire cabinet of state officials down the Tamiami trail to hold a powwow with the Indians, explaining that Florida wanted to assist the Indians in any way possible. But the Indians turned down his offers, insisting that they didn't want any help from the palefaces except free licenses to "dress up their cars and make them look pretty."

JAIL ESCAPEES FACE FED. CHARGE FOR TRUCK THEFT

Returned to Buffalo recently from Jefferson, Ind., two of three prisoners who escaped October 10 from the county jail, Belmont, were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Boyce H. Butterfield on Dyer Act charges arising from the alleged theft of an auto after the escape. The two prisoners, Roy H. Slocum, 21, and Merie H. Gordon, 37, were committed to jail in default of bail.

After the escape, Slocum and Gordon, together with Harry J. Empson, are alleged to have stolen Rex Springs' car at Belvidere and driven it to Cuba. In Cuba they stole a truck and abandoned it at Bradford, Pa., where they are said to have stolen another car and left this machine in Cleveland.

While in Bradford the three men are said to have become embroiled in a fight in a tavern at Lewisburg, Pa., where they were badly

 The group's Woman's Auxiliary held a luncheon-meeting at the same time, which was followed by talk by Dr. Daniel P. McMahon of Hornell, District State Health Officer, concerning the county health program.
 A committee was appointed to collect handwork of the shut-ins of this county to be sold at the Angelica Fair. The proceeds are to be turned back to these physically handicapped individuals.

October Milk Price $5.04

Dairy farmers will be paid a uniform price of $5.04 per hundred-weight for their October deliveries to the New York milkshed's 436 pool-approved plants, it is announced by Dr. C. J. Blanford, Market Administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area. The uniform price in October, 1946, was $4.86 per hundred-weight.

milk marketing orders, determined that at least 92 per cent of all milk received at country plants should be shipped as fluid milk for the balance of November. The determination was telegraphed to operators of the pool-approved plants, and the pool action followed a meeting held in New York city the previous Wednesday at which dealers who supply the metropolitan marketing area discussed the current and prospective supply picture.
 "This is the season of the year when milk production drops to its lowest point and when the threat of a shortage is ever present," Dr. Blanford explained. "It is therefore important that all available supplies of milk be channeled properly. It is expected that by establishing the minimum percentage of milk to be shipped in fluid form there will not be a serious shortage in the New York marketing area this year."
 Provisions in the federal and state milk marketing orders authorize the administrator to establish the percentage of milk to be shipped from country plants for fluid purposes. This provision applies only to the season of short supply, usually November and December. Pool plants which fail to ship milk in the established classes may be suspended from participation in the New York pool by the administrator.

Equally as important, as an equipment check, he says, is a new check on driving habits for winter operation.
 "Foremost factors in the high winter accident rates are inadequate traction and poor visibility," he decides. "Accordingly, drivers must learn to adjust speeds to conditions, use metal anti-skid chains when severe snow and ice conditions prevail, slow down well in advance of international wet curves, maintain safe distances between vehicles, and avoid sudden lane changes or hard braking on icy roads."

The service was held before the altar where the priest, with his hands joined, said the nuptial mass. The bride and groom made beautiful bows and a lovely setting. Mr. Harold Peck, the best man, stood with the bride. As the wedding was the church, the organist played the hymn "Walk With Me" following the ceremony. The bride was served at the table by an all-white staff. The ceremony was effected with white candles in crystal holders. The bride wore a tan-brown suit, a colored blouse, and a hat of brown and tan colors. Her hair was styled in waves. The bride's energy was evident as she looked to be girl.

After the escape, Slocum and Gordon, together with Harry J. Empson, are alleged to have stolen a truck and driven it to Cuba. In Cuba they stole a truck and abandoned it at Bradford, Pa., where they are said to have stolen another car and left this machine in Cleveland.

While in Bradford the three men are said to have become embroiled in a fight in a tavern at Lewis Run, Pa., where they were badly beaten up and made good another escape.

The three then are said to have continued on their flight to Indiana where state police spotted them in a stolen car and gave chase. Slocum and Gordon were shot down as they attempted to evade police and were captured. Empson, who had been let out of the machine a few minutes earlier, continued on his flight and is still at large.

The federal charge is based upon the alleged theft of the truck in Cuba.

Federal prison terms were imposed Monday at Buffalo on the above mentioned as follows: Gordon, 15 months; and Slocum, to one year and one day, for driving the stolen truck from Cuba to Bradford.

Dairy farmers will be paid a uniform price of $5.04 per hundred-weight for their October deliveries to the New York milkshed's 439 pool-approved plants, it is announced by Dr. C. J. Blanford, Market Administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area. The uniform price in October, 1946, was $4.86 per hundred-weight.

Dr. Blanford at the same time announces that the October producer butterfat differential would be six cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the 3.5 per cent standard.

The administrator said the milk production in October was up 6.96 per cent over the same month a year ago, despite a loss to the pool of 333 producers. He points out that the increase was made possible by the highest production per day per dairy for an October in the history of the marketing orders. Daily deliveries by each of the 45,875 producers in the pool last month averaged 290 pounds, 21 pounds more than the average for the month last year. The previous record for October production per day was set in 1945 with 270 pounds.

Total receipts at pool plants last month, Dr. Blanford says, were 412,551,625 pounds, compared with 385,693,116 pounds in October, 1945.

James W. Ackerman Purchases Law Practice Of Walter N. Renwick

Attorney James W. Ackerman of Cuba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon A. Ackerman, Belmont, recently purchased the practice of Ex-County Judge Walter N. Renwick, with whom he has been associated for some time. Mr. Renwick, who will celebrate his 82nd birthday next month, has retired, after practicing law for the past fifty years.

Attorney Ackerman is a graduate of Alfred University and the Buffalo Law School. He became associated with Mr. Renwick at Cuba in October, 1938, and except for the time he spent in the army, has practiced there since. In the army he attained the rank of captain while working in the Judge Advocate General's Department. He served from June, 1943, to November, 1946, 17 months of that time being spent in Manila.

Another Will Contest In County Court

County Court concerned itself most of last week with a will contest, second one this year. A jury, composed of three women and nine men, is hearing testimony as to whether or not undue influence was brought to bear on Lewis Isaman, Garwoods, or he was competent to make a will on May 15, 1943.

Arthur E. Isaman, Garwoods, a nephew, seeks probate of the will which leaves him the not more than $20,000 personal property listed in the petition for probate as the value of the 82-year-old man's estate. Contestants are 16 nephews and nieces, most of them resident in Western New York, as follows: William Hoffman, Mt. Morris; Charles and Edward Hoffman, Angelica; Hattie Hartman and Lester Isaman, Belmont; Neva Wilkins and Cussie Closser, Angelica; Floyd Isaman, Dansville; Gladys Goho, Mt. Morris; Bertha Gardner, Celeron; Letta Dudley, Mildred Ludwig and Effie Hasty, Dalton; Henry Isaman, Boston, Mass; Ernest Isaman, Dalton, and Mabel Boyd, Canaseraga.

Friday, the jury upheld both the proper execution of the will and the competency of the executor.

The above poster was designed for the 25th nation-wide observance of Children's Book Week by the distinguished illustrators of children's books, Ingri and Edgar Paris D'Aulaire. It is now on display in thousands of schools, libraries, bookstores and civic welfare centers to announce the opening of Book Week—November 16-23.

The Children's Book Council at 62 West 45th Street, New York City, by whom this poster is distributed, tells us that at least eleven million American boys and girls today are without library service or access to reading of any kind other than text books. These children live for the most part in rural areas and the conditions are to be found in varying degrees in nearly every state in the union.

The Council, which is a public information center for and about children's books, adds that they have initiated a national Book Week project, cooperating with the Save the Children Federation and the Treasure Chest Campaign, two of the Council's twenty-nine cooperating organizations. It is hoped that more fortunate communities will join in the Treasure Chests U.S.A. project to donate Treasure Chests of children's books to rural schools in the United States (25,000 Treasure Chest books have already been donated for children overseas).

Administrator Acts To Avert Milk Shortage

MEAT LOAF

- 2 lb. ground beef (chuck)
- 2 lb. ground pork butt or shoulder
- 2 lb. veal shoulder or breast
- one uncooked ham
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 well beaten egg
- 1/2 cup bottled milk or
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk and 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 cup drained canned tomatoes
- 1/4 cup chopped onion

Chop meat finely, mix and add remaining ingredients. Shape into loaf. Bake on rack (or packed in ground beef pan) in moderate oven at 350° F. for one and one quarter hours. Remove to platter, garnish and serve—serves 6 to 8.

Potatoes may be broiled at the same time the loaf is baking.

Peel potatoes, parboil 10 minutes. Coat with salad oil or other unsalted fat. Bake in oven with meat 40 minutes, basting or turning in fat every 10 minutes. After meat is taken from oven, bake potatoes at high heat of 375° F. for 10 minutes for extra browning.

Shape into loaf and place on rack for baking.

The use of economical grades of meat, which are equal in nutritive value to prime cuts, is recommended. The egg and milk ingredients, rich in vitamin C, help to supplement other vitamins in meat, help to avoid shrinkage of the meat.

POSTOFFICE _____

The above poster was designed for the 14th nation-wide observance of Children's Book Week by the distinguished illustrators of the children's books, Ingrid and Edgar Paris Yaufray. It is now on display in thousands of schools, libraries, bookstores and civic welfare centers to announce the opening of Book Week—November 15-27.

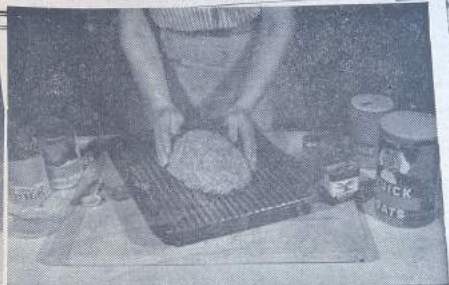

The Children's Book Council at 60 West 4th Street, New York City, by whom this poster is distributed, tells us that at least eleven million American boys and girls today are without library service or access to reading of any kind other than text books. These children live for the most part in rural areas and the conditions are to be found in varying degrees in nearly every state in the union.

The Council, which is a public information center for and about children's books, aids that they have initiated a national Book Week project, cooperating with the Save the Children Federation and the Treasure Chest Campaign, two of the Council's twenty-nine cooperating organizations. It is hoped that more fortunate communities will join in the Treasure Chest U.S.A. project to donate books to rural schools in the United States ($5,000 Treasure Chest books have already been ordered for children overseas).

MEAT LOAF

- 1 lb. ground beef (chuck)
- 1 lb. ground veal, lamb or shank
- 1 lb. veal shoulder or breast
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) tomato
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 well beaten egg
- 2 1/2 cups hot milk or 1 1/2 cups evaporated milk and 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup drained canned mushrooms
- 1/2 cup chopped onion

Chopped parsley may be added.

Chop meat finely, mix and add remaining ingredients. Shape into loaf. Bake on rack (or packed in ground beef pan) in moderate oven at 350° F. for one and one-quarter hours.

Remove to platter, garnish and serve—serves 6 to 8.

Potatoes may be broiled at the same time the loaf is baking.

Peel potatoes, parboil 10 minutes. Cook with salad oil or other animal fat. Bake in oven with meat 40 minutes, basting or turning in fat every 10 minutes. Also cook in skin from oven, bake potatoes at high heat of 375° F. for 10 minutes for more browning.

Beat egg and milk with other ingredients.

Shape into loaf and place on rack for baking.

(NYS PIX HEALTH)

Bake loaf for 1 1/4 hours. Bake potatoes about 40 minutes, depending on size.

Garnish and serve hot.

The use of economical grades of meat, which are equal in nutrients to prime cuts, is recommended. The egg and milk in the recipe provide additional protein. Potatoes, rich in vitamin C, help to supplement other citrus fruits in the day's menu. The low temperature at which the loaf is baked, helps to avoid shrinkage of the meat.

Distiller's Processed Grain Has Feed Value
By-Product Speeds Up Growth of Livestock
By W. J. MEYER

Leading agricultural colleges have conducted experiments with distiller's dried grains and have found that for every bushel of grain added in a distillery the high protein and essential nutrients recovered are equal to one and one-seventh bushels of grain on feed value when fed with terminated grain.

From every bushel of grain produced for alcohol at the distillery, 15 to 25 pounds of highly nutritious animal and poultry feeds are produced.

Household Hints

Chickadees that are used with extra care are much more apt to keep over. Use a good variety for the kitchen and entrance to get around the sides of the house.

Keep the window open slightly while the sun is shining through a blind and in your house.

Napkins or glasses left over after cleaning sometimes keep the shining through a blind and are returned to the sun for further shining purposes.

Have clothes in the kitchen placed close enough to be within easy reach. Then washing things will not be delayed there and allowed to rot.

Teaching the family to wipe their feet before entering the house saves wear and tear on rugs.

A good for children during winter months is, of course, to provide artificial coffee age in making wine, especially their parties.

Manure is important in furnishing plant food to the soil, adding organic matter and rebuilding soil structure. But you cannot maintain your soil simply by feeding crops to livestock and returning the manure to the land. Three series of trials using a total of 122 pigs were conducted to determine the maximum amount of cane molasses that can be utilized efficiently by pigs from weaning to a weight of 70 pounds. Rations containing levels of 10, 20, 30 and 40 per cent molasses were compared with check rations containing no molasses in the experiments at University of Hawaii.

The results indicate that, with the rations fed, 20 per cent is the maximum amount that will allow satisfactory gains and efficient feed utilization. Above this level of molasses both the rate of gain and efficiency of feed utilization decreases markedly.

Record Business Growth in State Aided by Its Commerce Department

New York Body Maintains World-wide Contacts in Work Publicizing State's Opportunities and Products; Solves Problems for Many Concerns

New York State is experiencing a record growth in business and industry. Business firms operating in the State, according to a recent survey, have reached an all-time high of 530,000—50,000 above the pre-war record and more than 129,000 above the wartime low. Gross value of manufactured products in the State is now running at an estimated $21,000,000,000 a year compared with $7,000,000,000 in 1929. Employees and proprietors total 4,652,000—approximately 75 per cent of the State's working population, not including farmers, professional people and non-business employees.

N.P.P.A. Established in 1944, after voters approved an amendment to the State constitution creating this department devoted to business progress, it has played a key part in the post-war expansion. Already it has become somewhat of a model followed by other states.

Work of the department in helping to re-establish thousands of small businesses concerns hit by the war won for it the national award of the American Public Relations Association last April. The department's work aiding all business groups and attracting of many new businesses to the State is also said to have aided to the prosperity of many areas.

New York, for instance, has taken hundreds of calls for aid received weekly, was that of a Rochester manufacturer who needed 75 one-halt horsepower electric motors - and needed them badly. Unable to locate them himself, he appealed by telephone to the main office of the Department of Commerce at Albany. The request was relayed by telephone to the regional offices and in 48 hours the motors were not only located but were on their way to the Rochester plant.

Similarly through speedy communication the Department has helped to find business opportunities, brought customers and suppliers together, found foreign markets for New York State products, aided veterans to establish themselves in business in small and large communities, helped to plan their airports and community growth and distributed information of business nature to people far and near.

CLOCK INVENTOR HONORED

For his work in developing the quartz crystal clock, most accurate time-keeper in the world, a New York man, Warren A. Harrison, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, has recently awarded the British Horological Institute's Gold Medal for 1947.

One of these clocks, located in the Laboratories in New York, is an integral part of the Bell System frequency standard. It is accurate to well within a second a year. This timekeeper also controls the world's most accurate public clock, several miles away, in the A. T. & T. headquarters building, by which many New Yorkers regularly set their watches.

Former New York Airplane Plant Now Busy Making Telephone Wire

In helping Bell System companies meet their record-breaking schedules for much-needed telephone equipment, Western Electric Company, manufacturing and supply unit of the System, recently purchased this big plant from the Curtiss-Wright Corporation at Tonawanda, near Buffalo.

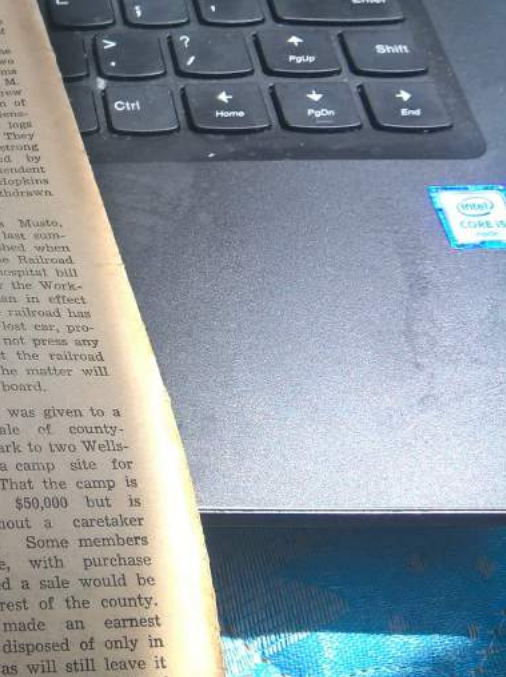

This latest addition to Western's expanding facilities was leased on June 1, 1946, and went into operation in August a year ago. Comprising 47.5 acres of land and 779,000 square feet of floor space, the factory, which made airplanes in wartime, includes a large group of one-story manufacturing buildings, a three-story office building and a number of service buildings. It now employs 2,000 people and the installation of about 90 per cent of its manu-

Supervisors' Annual Meeting

Following is an account of routine matters considered by the Board of Supervisors at its annual session. Judge Wand M. Hopkins, the county's attorney, presented two suggested settlements of claims against the county. One of M. Murphy & Sons, Ellenville, grew out of last summer's breakdown of the Pittsford bridge over the Genesee River by a heavy load of logs on one of that firm's trucks. They sued the county, but such a strong counterclaim was presented by County Highway Superintendent Harry Craig and Attorney Hopkins that the suit will be withdrawn with the consent of all.

Chief of Police Thomas Musto, Cuba, was badly injured last summer and his car demolished when it was struck by an Erie Railroad passenger train. His hospital bill was taken care of under the Workmen's Compensation plan in effect in this county, and the railroad has offered $1,000 for the lost car, provided the county will not press any damage claim against the railroad for the accident. The matter will be passed on by the board.

Considerable time was given to a discussion of the sale of county-owned Eggleston Park to two Wells-ville residents for a camp site for girls and boys. That the camp is worth a probable $50,000 but is deteriorating without a caretaker was brought out. Some members favored a lease, with purchase privilege provided a sale would be to the best interest of the county. Judge Hopkins made an earnest plea that it be disposed of only in such a manner as will still leave it

Growth in State Commerce Department

World-wide Contacts in Work Opportunities and Products; Plans for Many Concerns

The lead in the tourist boom and the travel and resort business has moved into the billion dollar class. The concentrated nation-wide campaign sponsored by the Commerce Department's Division of Recreation has been a major share of the credit for 1937's expansion of recreation in the State.

The Publicity Division, which is the Department's publication, extends the radio and news distribution of the three divisions of the organization. Commerce and Industry Division maintains direct personal contact with business, and the Division of Economic Development analyzes economic conditions in the State and aids communication.

By swift communication, and frequent use of long distance telephones, the three divisions are put into an effective working unit.

At the Queensborough Works on Long Island most of the Bell System's telephone booths and other wood products are made.

It also has installation crews located in practically all of the large cities and in hundreds of smaller communities where central offices and other equipment are being installed.

GROWING 'PHONE USE IN REPORTING FIRES REVEALED IN SURVEY

Voiceways Used in 37% of Alarms for Real Fires in Big City; Operator in Key Role

In New York State, where the telephone is used to an increasing extent in reporting fires, according to a recent survey. Even where extensive, well-established systems of fire alarm boxes serve, as in New York City, a large proportion of fires are reported by the voiceways, because it is usually only a few steps away to the nearest telephone, and gaining precious time in the emergency may save lives and valuable property.

In the big city, according to William F. Hennessy, the fire department's communications expert, there are about 2,375,000 telephones but only 12,000 fire alarm boxes. While about one-third of all fire alarms in the city are sent in by telephone, it is responsible for reporting about 37 per cent of all fires. The matter will be passed on by the board.

Considerable time was given to a discussion of the sale of county-owned Eggleston Park to two Wellsville residents for a camp site for girls and boys. That the camp is worth a probable $50,000 but is deteriorating without a caretaker was brought out. Some members favored a lease, with purchase privilege provided a sale would be to the best interest of the county. Judge Hopkins made an earnest plea that it be disposed of only in such a manner as will still leave it to minister to the best interests of the youth of the county. He called Mrs. Hattie Eggleston, now of Cincinnati, N. Y., the county's Good Neighbor for giving the 32 acres of land for the site.

During adding of bills, Clerk Denzil G. Perkins explained that the cost of workman's compensation insurance in 1947, under the self-insurance plan for county, towns and villages, may be the largest since the plan was originated because of one death claim and one of $1,500 for injuries to a volunteer fireman.

That the annual budget for 1948, now being worked out by the board, will be ready for passage this week, possibly Friday, was announced, as expected, at Monday's meeting by Chairman Francis M. It is expected the budget will lie on the table for 24 hours after reading before being voted upon.

The thousands of vacationists who visit Oregon's Timberline Lodge on the slope of snow-covered Mt. Hood each year can now talk by radio—part of the way, at least—with their friends and families back home. A radiotelephone system recently installed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company provides dependable communication from the famous resort to the outside world, supplementing wire circuits which are difficult to maintain because of rock slides, heavy snowfalls, and other adversities.

Telephone conversations between Portland and Timberline Lodge travel by wire from Portland to Carver, then take to the air across the 40 miles of rugged terrain to the Lodge. Two 90-foot poles with directional antennas serve at each end of the radio circuit. This new system is the second Bell System point-to-point FM radiotelephone installation of its kind for spanning difficult country. The other installation serves the Death Valley region.

American soldiers stationed in Korea may now telephone home or anywhere else in the U. S. via the Bell System's latest overseas channel, spanning the 5,000 miles between Seoul and San Francisco. Initially, calls may be made only from Seoul, the Korean capital. Because of the difficulty of locating persons in that country, it is not possible yet to place calls from the United States.

 Dr. George W. Batt, one of the county's coroners, reported on 15 deaths of a character requiring services of such an official. Five of these were drownings, four auto, tractor or truck accidents, three suicides.

County Judge and Surrogate and Children's Court Judge Ward M. Hopkins wrote the board he would like to attend the Albany December 4 and 5 annual conference of Children's Court judges of this state, and it was voted that the county pay his expenses while enroute, there and returning.

A communication was read from an official of the Allegany County Home Bureau urging favorable consideration to that portion of the budget for that work which would make possible employment of an assistant home demonstration agent.

A four-page report of an October 1 inspection of the county jail by the State Commission of Corrections made four recommendations: That a differently keyed lock from all others in the jail be put on the detention room; that existing niche toilets in cells be replaced by modern fixtures; that consideration be given a more secure method of conducting visits to prisoners, and that prisoners working outside the jail be under active supervision at all times.

The one-half cost of fire fighting ordered charged against towns was as follows: Angelica, $15.07; Burns, $3.00; Clarksville, $7.59; Granger, $3.06, and Grove, $3.06.
