RECORD AWARD GIVEN FORMER ELMONT MAN

Jury here established a procedure last week in Justice George Lowe's Supreme Court term the members returned a verdict in the amount of $50,000, to be by far the largest award in the history of Allegany county's damages.

The case concerned a damage action against the Wellsville Oil Company brought to recover for perils received while the cars as thawing oil lines a year ago.

The amount asked in the complaint. The $50,000 verdict late last Thursday following testimony of several days. The verdict was unanimous.

Boy Scouts

The Scout Troops and Senior Units of Angelica have been asked to join in the Annual Fall Round-up of new members which is being made by the Seneca Council, Boy Scouts of America. A goal of 200 new scouts is being sought. Each Unit has been given a quota to reach before December 31, 1947.

Each Troop or Senior Unit which meets its goal will be recognized at the Annual Meeting of the Council and also at a party to be given for new Scouts early in December. A fine certificate has been prepared for the Unit.

During each year there are about 900 boys who become eligible for Scouting in the Seneca Council territory. A good percentage of these boys have already joined Scouting in the early months of this year. But there are many new boys available which the Council wishes to invite into the Troops now. Thus the goal of 200 new Scouts is being sought.

LACERATED ARM RESULTS FROM TRACTOR MISHAP

Misfortune, no end, seems the lot of Mrs. Leon Collins, 44, of Feathers Creek, as painful and serious injuries appear to constantly punctuate her life.

The latest and perhaps the most painful mishap to befall the unfortunate lady occurred last Wednesday afternoon while drilling wheat with a tractor on the Collins' Feathers Creek farm.

The story is to the effect that Mrs. Collins had assumed the job of tractor driving, without too much experience, and in some manner, quite understandable, lost control of the powerful machine which immediately headed for a nearby barbed-wire fence and before it stalled the ugly barbs of the wire had left her right arm a frightful, torn limb, and, according to her physician, Dr. J. Paul Rems, to whom she was brought at once, following the accident, may be a complete loss.

Three different times the unfortunate lady has suffered from bone breaks and it is not too long ago that the husband was terribly hurt when a fractious horse kicked him in the face, breaking his jaw and otherwise injuring him.

Letter To the Editor

To The Editor:

In my last letter to The Advocate I wrote a few lines that ridiculed the human race for its lack of reason and logic. That of course, was just a bit of wise (?) cracking caused by the heat and humidity. The fact is, I believe that the great majority of people in the world are endowed with reason and are able to arrive at logical conclusions. So for instance, let us consider the case of Russia with its approximately 100,000,000 population. The vast majority of this population has no voice in the government of their country. A small hand picked minority known as "the Party" are the only ones allowed to vote in any election. And this minority is completely controlled by a few "self-starters" headed by a dictator. This governing group denies the existence of any God and decides all religious lore as being entirely mythical. Consequently they having no religious scruples, it seems reasonable to them to commit wholesale murders and assassinations at home and to use spies and saboteurs abroad and lying propaganda both at home and abroad. So after practicing these methods for nearly 80 years with a fair amount of success, they seem to reason that they must redouble their efforts to spread chaos and discord throughout the world. It seems to me that their lack of co-operation gumming up the proceedings of the United Nations Commission means that they just don't want to play ball at all. Well—what do they want? It would please them very much if they could accidentally cause a rift in the friendly relations

Clambake a Success

Between 300 and 500 people attended the clambake given by the Angelica Conservation Club at the Belmont Conservation Club last Sunday.

The bake was superintended by Nick Codispotti, Dorr Walldorf and Percy Graham. The bake as well as the entertainment was voted a huge success.

The Angelica Conservation Club varied the usual procedure at clambakes by including women among the guests. The club will probably do this at all future clambakes since the idea was received so enthusiastically.

propaganda both at home and abroad. So after practicing these methods for nearly 30 years with a fair amount of success, they seem to reason that they must redouble their efforts to spread chaos and discord throughout the world. It seems to me that their lack of cooperation gumming up the proceedings of the United Nations Commission means that they just don't want to play ball at all. Well—what do they want? It would please them very much if they could accidentally cause a rift in the friendly relations between the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States. However, they are out of their element and that is the secret of atomic energy and the possible stock of atomic bombs in possession of the United States. The picture of one of those babies landing in the "Red Square" in Moscow gives them a constant chill of fear, for they know what they would do if they controlled these convincing little pills. A badly frightened criminal is doubly dangerous; so let's use a little reason and logic and continue our control of atomic research and production for a few years until the dust of war has settled and world peace is assured. It is less expensive to keep an adequate force at home for a few years than to fight an all-out war for 6 months. Hence, I believe it is a wise policy to keep our life insurance paid up to the minute and to be ever on the alert to meet any emergency until the people in war torn Europe are getting three square meals a day when they will be better able to reason correctly and appreciate the blessings of living in a peaceful world. Now what do you think about it? Am I reasonably correct, or am I just another nut? Thanks for listening and good night.

Due to the fact that our variety store is closed on Wednesday afternoons, we find Wednesday to be our poorest day of the work week in so far as volume of sales is concerned.

In an effort to improve our Wednesday forenoon sales, we have decided to give, with each purchase totaling 50c or more and made on Wednesday forenoon from now until December 20th, a free ticket or chance on a turkey to be drawn for at a public drawing in our store on the night of Saturday, December 20th. You will not have to be present when the drawing is made unless you so wish.

Which each sale totaling 50c or more and made on Wednesdays until December 20th, you will receive a blank ticket on which you will print or write plainly your name and address and drop it in the box which will be in the front part of the store.

We can't tell you the size of the turkey to be given as they are still growing but it will be a nice turkey, grown on wire and big enough for your Christmas dinner.

Americans Dote on Nation's Monuments to Its Heroes

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—If you haven't anything else to do, just take a seat beside me on this bench for a moment. I think this is one of the nicest "little parks" in the world. It doesn't take its name from the gentleman on the horse right over there in the center, behind the iron pickets. I don't know why. Of course, he is only a replica. The original is in a square in the city he defended from the British—in the "vieux carre" of New Orleans.

He was GENERAL Jackson then. We think of him as President Jackson now. And we make fun of the horse he's sitting on, that prancing steed with his feet planted so firmly in the air ("like a liberal congressman," as one of the old conservatives used to say). It took many pounds of lead in Andy's horse's tail to keep the two of them in balance, they tell me.

But don't think the horse's hind feet are not firmly planted! The one man who tried to move them brought down an avalanche on his head, and gave a President of the United States a real headache.

He was GENERAL Jackson then. We think of him as President Jackson now. It took many pounds of lead in Andy's horse's tail to keep the two of them in balance, they tell me.

But don't think the horse's hind feet are not firmly planted! The one man who tried to move them brought down an avalanche on his head, and gave a President of the United States a real headache.

It happened this way: There is a statue of George Washington tucked off on a circle in a neighborhood which has neither the distinguished past nor the glorious present of Lafayette Square. Back in the regime of President Harding, that statue was taken down for a little repair. A newspaperman, hard up for a feature, sat down and wrote himself quite a piece. His name was John Russell Young, and he is now commissioner (mayor) of the District of Columbia. In his piece, he suggested that when Washington was prettied up and returned to public view, he should be placed in the center of Lafayette park. Andy Jackson, Young thought, could be relegated to Washington's former relatively obscure position in Washington Circle. Local officials agreed.

Then the deluge. The story was widely printed and it seemed that every Democrat in the United States was personally affronted. The presidential secretaries had piles of mail to answer. The climax came when every time I passed by the statue of Kosciuszko, I could hear a faint murmur. I had no doubt it was Kosciuszko telling what he would do today if he could just get down from his pedestal.

A number of people wrote in about that. They always do when I mention the statues. People are interested in statues even though they have gone out of style as monuments. You know, the Du Pont family took the bust of old Admiral Samuel F. Du Pont out of the famous circle named after him, and replaced it with the present beautiful memorial fountain. Some Washingtonians were deeply offended and the national parks service was kept busy for several days answering phone calls and letters from indignant citizens.

In fact about the only complaints the national parks service has been receiving of late years have been concerned with the upkeep of the 77 statues entrusted to its care. Some Washingtonians call up to rebuke the service for the greenish tinge creeping over some of them, like Kosciuszko's. It is bronze and weather turns it green, which most sculptors feel adds to its beauty, so the service doesn't worry too much.

There wasn't much money for the national parks during World War II to pretty up Washington's statuary. About all the service could manage was a yearly washing of each statue (it takes several men a whole day for the laundering job). But

The 1947 corn crop, estimates of which have been shrinking like a $10 suit ever since August, was reduced by another 33 million bushels in the department of agriculture's September report.

Total estimate cuts since August 1 were 256 million bushels, and the expected outturn this year now has been placed at 2,403,913,000 bushels.

There was more potential bad news, said the department: In case

URGENT:

Stopgap Aid

George Marshall, U. S. secretary of state, was trying his best to pile up pressure for a special session of congress this autumn to finance immediate interim aid to keep Europe on its feet until Marshall's billion-dollar, long-range rehabilitation plan begins functioning.

Stymied by Republican leaders who were either downright opposed or indifferent to an emergency session before January, Marshall is taking his case to the people, tempting to rally public opinion behind him.

Intolerable cold and hunger are immediate threats facing Europe, he said. The crisis calls for urgent consideration.

What would it cost this time Marshall said that there was no estimate of stop-gap needs. He didn't deny reports that William Clayton, undersecretary of state, had cabled from Europe a re

Then the deluge. The story was widely printed and it seemed that every Democrat in the United States was personally affronted. The presidential secretaries had tales of woe to tell. The statue's name when a forgotten Andrew Jackson patriotic and marching club, which appeared to be very much alive and kicking, threatened to descend on Washington in a body. The President had to issue a public statement saying that Andy was safe.

But I didn't intend to run on about Andy. The park is not, as I said, named after him. It's named after that young man you see over there on the southeast corner — looking right across Pennsylvania avenue into the window of the No. 1 guest chamber of the White House. His name is Marquis Marie Joseph Paul Yves Rich Gilbert du Motier de Lafayette. Yes, we're in Lafayette park.

Over there on the northeast corner is another Frenchman, Field Marshal Jean Baptiste Donatien de Vimeur, Comte de Rochambeau. Over there on the northwest, opposite the Decatur House where Commodore Stephen Decatur died after being shot in a duel with a fellow officer (Commodore Barron) out at Bladensburg, is Baron Friedrich Wilhelm August Heinrich von Steuben, who was as useful to General Washington, in his way, as Lafayette was in his.

There wasn't much money for the national parks during World War II to pretty up Washington's statuary. About all the service could manage was a day for the laundering men a whole day for the laundering job. But this year congress gave the service $10,000 for trucking equipment, hoses, masonry repairs, plumbing fixtures for the fountains and other monuments.

They have another $10,000 to spend on structural repairs—to replace missing arms, legs and chunks hacked out by souvenir hunters, for statues have their ghoulies, too. But most of the finger breaking, it is believed, is done by perverted youth. On the whole, people like statues.

Crop reporting board said that "it now seems likely that at least 15 per cent of all corn in the corn belt states will have matured by the average date of the first killing frost," but warned that if it were a week early, it would catch about 40 per cent of all corn at an immature stage. If frost came a week later, only a 15 per cent loss would be registered.

Latest estimates also foretold a sharp reduction in the record wheat crop. Output was set at 1,408,602,000 bushels, as compared with the August 1 prediction of 1,435,551,000 bushels.

intolerable cold and hunger are the immediate threats facing Europe, he said. The crisis calls for urgent consideration.

Clayton, undersecretary of state, cabled from Europe a request for a special session of congress to raise 2.5 billion dollars for aid now.

The special session was far from assured. If it came to a showdown, GOP leaders probably would oppose it, and they could, if they wished, stifle any economic aid legislation.

GOP VICTORY:

Straw in Wind?

Jubilant Republicans were making much of Franklin H. Lichtenwaller's resounding victory over Democratic candidate, in a special election to fill Pennsylvania's eighth district seat in congress.

The issue, naturally, was the Taft-Hartley labor law, and the outcome was a two-to-one acceptance by the voters. If Pennsylvania is as much a political weathervane as it is claimed to be, the Lichtenwaller victory forecasts a cold, bleak wind from the north for Democrats in 1948.

Republican hoop-la called the vote "a smashing rebuke to the radical labor bosses who chose to make Taft-Hartley labor management the paramount issue of the election."

But that brings me to the statue I was really going to talk about: Tadeusz Andrzej Bonaventura Kosciuszko, standing on the fourth corner of the park across from the house which once belonged to James Madison. Dolly lived there after her husband died.

The other day, a dispatch came in from Warsaw which said that the minister of education of the Communist-dominated Polish government had ordered there would be no more "salacious chattering jokes and significant smiling" in Polish schools and universities.

I got to reminiscing on the air about how I had been told Polish students acted in the days when Poland was divided between Russia, Austria and Germany. Teaching of Polish history was suppressed, and the Russian secret police then were as brutal (if not quite as efficient) as the Communist police in Poland are today.

It seems a Polish teacher in those days occasionally would slip in his lecture some subtle anti-Russian or patriotic remark. There wouldn't be the slightest response from the students. The teacher would go right ahead, and then, after a perfectly innocent sentence of some kind, he'd pause (and probably do a little "significant smiling"). Then the students would fairly raise the roof with applause and cheers—delayed action.

I mentioned that on the air, as I said, and commented that

COLD-BLOODED FORECAST

Coal Shortage Looms for U.S.

Take a tip from the coal producers: Unless your furnace burns oil, it will be a good idea to keep a little sunshine in your smile and warmth in your heart this winter.

Because, from the standpoint of obtaining coal, it looks like the winter of 1947-48 will be the toughest in at least six years. Producers already are admitting drearily that there is little chance that fuel shortages, inconvenience and suffering can be put aside.

Reasons for this uninviting outlook are three, in particular:

1. Unparalleled demand in a peacetime period which even record production (600 million tons) will not fully satiate. Attempts are being made to stockpile, but to little avail. Industrial stocks are the lowest in years; retail supplies on hand are only fair.

2. Unprecedented shortage of railroad cars. Never, in history of the solid fuels industry, were so few cars available to move so much coal to so many consumers.

3. Domestic buyer indifference to pleas that they fill their bins during summer months. That apathy is accounted for by higher retail prices of coal, combined with the prolonged heat wave which lulled the householder into a false sense of security.

At the same time, paradoxical though it may seem, coal production this year will reach a level surpassed only by the output in 1944 when the price was at the height of its war effort.

Even if miners dug and machined an average of only 10 million tons a week during the remaining weeks of 1947, production would be 45 million tons higher than the 1946 total in 1948.

Because of strikes, idle time, car shortages and a shorter work week, the mines have lost somewhere between 35 and 50 million tons of production so far this year.

Concerning prices, the most likely prospect is for them to go up again. Dealers say that the customer appears ready to take higher charges for his coal as something unavoidable, but he doesn't like it.

Hay Cured in Silos By Electrical Motor Mechanical Method of Saving New Hay Crop

Although the barn mow still is more extensively used today than any other place for the mechanical curing of hay and other forage crops, it lately has been receiving some competition from other farm structures—notably the silo.

Use of silos for curing forage crops is gaining favor with farmers who do not have the space required for installation of necessary equipment in their one-story barns, as well as those who desire to use their mows for other purposes. The accompanying illustration shows a typical silo hay curing installation.

up pressure for a special session to finance immediate interim aid to keep Europe on its feet until Marshall's 20-billion-dollar, long-range rehabilitation plan begins functioning.

Stymied by Republican leaders who were either downright opposed or indifferent to an emergency session before January, Marshall was taking his case to the people, attempting to rally public opinion behind him.

Intolerable cold and hunger are the immediate threats facing Europe, he said. The crisis calls for urgent consideration.

What would it cost this time?

He didn't deny reports that William Clayton, undersecretary of state, had cabled from Europe a request for a special session of congress to the 2.5 billion dollars for aid now. The special session was far from assured. If it came to a showdown, GOP leaders probably would oppose openly, and they could, if they wished, stifle any economic aid legislation.

The cost of curing hay electrically by this method with a 5 or 7½ horsepower motor is about $1 per ton, the same as in the case of mow systems. Tests show that the quality of hay, cured in this way, also equals that cured in the barn, being worth from $5 to $10 more per ton in feeding value than that dried by the sun.

Beet Top Silage Cuts Requirement for Hay

The best feeding practices have demonstrated that by use of beet top silage in the ration, the hay requirements may be reduced by one-half in the feeding for production of beef, mutton or milk. The succulent value of the silage supplements its actual feeding properties and that of forage and other feeds. Many feeders think that the silage has a value almost equal to good hay. ton for ton.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging back-ache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

avail. Industrial stocks are the lowest in years; retail supplies on hand are only fair.
2. Unprecedented shortage of railroad cars. Never, in history of the solid fuels industry, were so few cars available to move so much coal to so many consumers.
3. Domestic buyer indifference to pleas that they fill their bins during summer months. That apathy is accounted for by higher retail prices of coal, combined with the prolonged heat wave which lulled the householder into a false sense of security.
At the same time, paradoxical though it may seem, coal production this year will reach a level surpassed only by the output in 1944

when the nation was at the height of its war effort.
Even if miners dug and machined an average of only 10 million tons a week during the remaining weeks of 1947, production would be 45 million tons higher than the 532 million total in 1946.
Because of strikes, idle time, car shortages and a shorter work week, the mines have lost somewhere between 35 and 50 million tons of production so far this year.
Concerning prices, the most likely prospect is for them to go up again. Dealers say that the customer appears ready to take higher charges for his coal as something unavoidable, but he doesn't like it.

All Iowa's Eggs Are Not Confined to One Basket

WNU Features.

DES MOINES, IOWA.—If all the eggs laid in Iowa in one year were fried "sunny side up" and stitched together into a giant patchwork quilt, they would blanket an area eight times the size of the Chicago loop.

Known as "America's egg basket" because it ranks first in production of eggs, Iowa earned $119,103,000 from this product in 1945, latest year for which figures are available, according to a report compiled by the Iowa Development commission. In that year the state produced 4,327,000,000 eggs and grossed an income from eggs amounting to three times the gross income from all citrus fruit (lemons, oranges and grapefruit) produced that year in Texas.

Iowa produces 7 per cent of the nation's entire consumption of eggs, rated as one of the seven basic foods necessary to assure good health.

The state appears destined to lead all other states in production of this protein food for many years to come, the development commission maintains, pointing to Iowa's proper climate and enormous feed production possibilities as well as to the fact that producers are interested in exporting superior poultry and egg products.

Egg production in Iowa has encouraged considerable industrial development. Produce plants were organized in the state more than 60 years ago. With development of cold storage houses came introduction of refrigerator cars which deliver eggs in good condition to cold storage houses in various consum-

 Egg production in Iowa has encouraged considerable industrial development. Produce plants were organized in the state more than 60 years ago. With development of cold storage houses came introduction of refrigerator cars which deliver eggs in good condition to cold storage houses in various consuming centers. Iowa ships more eggs annually to Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, the four great egg markets of the country, than any other state.
 Many of Iowa's eggs are reduced to liquid form, egg breaking plants having been established in 48 localities. Fourteen dried egg plants also are located in the state.

Trailing Iowa as top poultry states of the nation, on the basis of 1945 figures, are: Minnesota with
 3,757,000,000 eggs produced, $107-
 557,000 gross income; Texas, 3,309-000,000 eggs produced, $94,084,000
 gross income; Missouri, 2,890,000-000 eggs produced, $78,474,000 gross income; Ohio, 2,781,000,000 eggs produced, $68,306,000 gross income;
 Illinois, 2,757,000,000 eggs produced, $76,916,000 gross income, and Pennsylvania, 2,481,000,000 eggs produced, $63,326,000 gross income.

Pastor Preaches Sermon Without Saying a Word

MACON, GA.—One minister who admits that he preaches his sermons without saying a word is the Rev. James M. Johnston, 25-year-old assistant pastor of the Foursquare Gospel church here.

He has inaugurated special services for the deaf and dumb members of the congregation, delivering regular Sunday sermons entirely through the standard hand signal alphabet.

The plan started one Sunday when Johnson noticed several deaf and dumb people in the congregation listening to the pastor preach.
 But they weren't hearing a word.
 Johnson stood beside the pastor, translating the sermon into hand signals.

Johnson admits the method has its drawbacks. When his congregation "sings" hymns, you can't hear them. You have to be content with seeing what they mean, he explains.

In some respects, Johnson feels, his mute congregation has it all over their brethren who can hear and talk. Using hand signals, Johnson says, he has three different ways to say "Praise the Lord" and three more ways to say "Halle-lujah."

Pastry Tricks

Now that cooler weather has come, we can all indulge in a few of the richer desserts that we've been avoiding during hot, swea-
 tering weather.
 Since it's cooler
 you won't mind using the oven if baking the pie is required, and you won't mind taking the extra time for their preparation.

There was a time when we thought of pie as something with a crust made of shortening, flour and water, but now there are many new crumb crusts from which to choose —and sometimes these are even better with certain types of fillings.

If you want a real taste delight, experiment with new crusts, novel fillings, and gather yourself a new and delicious collection of pastries from which to choose desserts. We all grow tired of eating the same things day in, day out, and there's so much new in the way of food it's just not a matter of homogeneity who doesn't find different touches to add to her menus.

Since fall is on the way, you'll be using pumpkin quite often. Here

 To steam means cooking in steam or in boiling water. To parboil means to cook food partially in one way. Potatoes may be boiled and then to finish cooking by baking, for example. Babeek. Here is a truth for today. In our dismay over the atomic bomb, we are about to forget that God intended for man to discover atomic energy, and he expected man to have enough moral stamina to use this discovery for his good and God's glory.

Which brings us to the heart of the Preacher's message, chapter 12, verse 13: "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man."

Seeking the Best in Life
 SOLOMON, by his own testimony, missed much of the finer things of life; but he admonishes the reader to profit by his mistake and seek the best in life. For example, in chapter 2, verse 24, Solomon says: "There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labour."

Every boy and girl in the world knows the joy of honest work, at least I hope so. Have you grown a beautiful flower? A vegetable garden? Cut a cord of fire wood? Then you know that work is one of the essential ways of seeking the best in life. Then Solomon comes to the first eight verses of the last chapter—a golden section for memory. It is the first passage of Scripture I ever learned. I trust every young person reading this column will commit that passage to memory, if you have not already done so.

Testing Life's Philosophies
 SOLOMON concludes his confessions with this probing declaration: "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every creak thing, whether it be good, whether it be evil." What is he saying? He is reminding us that whatever may be the philosophy of life, such philosophy, together with our commitments, will be tested out and white light of God's ultimate judgment. My conclusion is that I desire one thing—to find and follow the philosophy of God, which is always right and always best.

Sidewalk Cattlemen Get Boot Privileges

SWEETWATER, TEX. — Unique boot privileges are enjoyed by members of the newly-organized West Texas Sidewalk Cattlemen's association. Rules of the association allow the owner of at least two head of cattle to wear boots; the owner of three head of cattle may stuff the right leg of his pants in the top of his boot; and the owner of four head may stuff both pants legs in his boots, and the owner of six head may wear spurs. Any infraction of the rules requires that the violator buy drinks for everybody within yelling distance. The club, it is explained by its organizer, Ocie Hunt, is designed to acquaint members all over the United States and in some foreign countries with the west Texas style of humor.

Sunday School Lesson
BY LOUIE D. NEWTON, D.D.

SCRIPTURE: Ecclesiastes.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Ecclesiastes 1:1-7.

Worthy Objectives

Lesson for September 28, 1947

THE Book of Ecclesiastes, written by Solomon, B. C. 977, is profitable in the fact that it discloses the findings of a very remarkable man on life. Solomon tells us that he had tried every tempting offer of the world, but found it vanity. "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity," he declares.

Solomon is often referred to as the wisest of men. He does not make this claim, nor would I suggest it. As a matter of fact, Solomon was a very unwise man in many of the manifestations of his life. He had every advantage, but yielded to selfish pursuits of pleasure when he might have been serving his day and generation by the will of God.

Why do I point to Solomon as an unwise man? From his own testimony—"I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly; I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that in-

Pastry Tricks

Now that cooler weather has come, we can all indulge in a pie of the richest description that we have ever known. As a matter of fact, during hot, sultry weather, when it is cooler, you won't mind using the oven if the pie is required, and taking the extra time for their preparation.

There was a time when we thought of pie as something with a crust made of shortening, sugar and water, but now there are many new crumb crusts from which to choose—and sometimes these are even better with certain types of fillings.

If you want a real taste delight, experiment with new crusts, new fillings, and gather yourself a new and delicious collection of pastries from which to choose desserts. We all grow tired of eating the same things day in, day out, and there is so much new in the way of food, who doesn't find different touches to add to her menus.

Since fall is on the way, you'll be using pumpkin quite often. Here are two excellent variations of the old-fashioned pumpkin pie, both of which are guaranteed to make a hit with the family.

Orange Pumpkin Pie

(Nine Inch)

- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/4 cups pumpkin
- 1 cup evaporated milk (scalded)
- 3 tablespoons orange juice

Make a smooth paste of the spices and water. Add with sugar, salt, and beaten eggs to Combine all ingredients. Pat firmly into pan, chill for several hours. Fill with above filling and chill.

Lemon Chiffon Pie

(Nine Inch)

- 1 envelope plain unflavored gelatine
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup white corn syrup
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Soften gelatine in cold water. Beat egg yolks; add corn syrup, lemon juice and salt. Cook in double boiler until consistency starting constantly. Add softened gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add grated lemon rind. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into baked pie shell or crumb crust and chill.

Honey Crumb Pie Shell

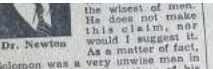

- 3 cups oven-popped rice cereal
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine

Crush rice cereal into fine crumbs. Add honey and butter; mix well. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of pie pan. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) about 10 minutes. Cool before adding filling.

the wisest of men. He does not make this claim, nor would I suggest it. As a matter of fact, Solomon was a very unwise man in many of the manifestations of his life. He had every advantage, but yielded to selfish pursuits of pleasure when he might have been serving his day and generation by the will of God.

Why do I point to Solomon as an unwise man? From his own testimony—"I gave my own testis-wisdom, and to know madness and folly; I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow."

Excellent Advice

EVEN so, Solomon was ready, by the time he wrote Ecclesiastes, to give some excellent advice. He had discovered that pomp and ceremony are meaningless—that they turn at last to ashes.

For example, "He (God) hath made everything beautiful in its time," chapter 3, verse 11. Solomon had dealt in the artificial, He had worn the most costly robes, lived in the finest palaces, had gardens set up to please any passing whim.

But now that he has come to see the vanity of men, he can at last open his eyes to the beauty which God creates. And now he has become a wise man, indeed. There is beauty everywhere if only we have eyes to see.

Words of Wisdom

THE next section of Sunday's lesson brings us to one of Solomon's greatest confessions. He says, chapter 3, verse 14: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him."

We do well to remember that God is, and that he is good, and that he is sovereign. "This is our Father's world," wrote Maltbie Babcock. Here is a truth for today. In our dismay over the atomic bomb, we are about to forget that God intended for man to discover atomic energy, and he expected man to have enough moral stamina to use this discov-

THE BUILD-UP

I was stumbling along in my car containing people and watching my nervous windshield wiper as it wobbled out a queer segment of a circle when I spotted a smallish man walking ahead. The back of his neck seemed a bit scrawny and a little round hat sat on top of his head as though a vagrant breeze had dropped it there.

He was carrying a small bunch of flowers. When I pulled alongside I asked him if he wanted a lift. His clothes were limp with the steady drizzle and he seemed to have walked a long way. "I've only got a short way to go now," he said. "It ain't hardly worth bothering about."

"Jump in, anyway," I said, "you're all soaked."

"All right. But I'm only going around the bend there to Cypress Hills." As he got into the car he held the flowers high so as not to break the stems.

"Cypress Hills," I repeated by way of showing a little interest. "That's a cemetery, isn't it?"

"Yes, it's a cemetery."

"Guess I'll pull up alongside the road until it blows over," I told my passenger. Neither of us spoke for a while. The great clatter of the storm outside rendered the silence behind the closed windows a little oppressive. Presently the little man said, "My wife is buried over there." He pointed in the direction of Cypress Hills. "I'm sorry," I answered.

"When—" "Just a few weeks ago." "Was it sudden or—" He ignored my unfinished question and said absently, "It's strange what a delicate thing life is. It can be cut off by an accidental move or even a thoughtless word. Something you say can snap it off just like a thin piece of thread."

There was a clap of thunder and the downpour rapped us in a fresh film of rain. The little man told me around fine. Jed Miley down at the post office told me his wife was like that and as long as they didn't get any excitement or shock they could live to be a hundred. Martha always rested when I told her but she never really rested even when she was lying down. Her mind was working. She was thinking how she could make the town know what a great husband she had. I tried to explain that it didn't matter as long as we were happy. But she kept on being riled. I just kind of hoped something big would happen to me for Martha's sake.

Well, sir, it was like the hand of fate. Something big did happen at last. At least, it was big to Martha last. At least, it was big to Martha last. At least, it was big to Martha last. At least, it was big to Martha last.

Well, the big night finally came. When I got dressed up I looked pretty good. Martha stood at the gate waving good-by and looked ten years younger. I was sort of choked up and happy. I was only sorry she couldn't come along. It was just for men, you know.

I left my car in front of the house and walked down to the Clifton Hotel so I could go over my speech just one last time. When I got there I said hello to everybody—even Longyear, president of the bank. I'd never spoken to him before. I felt pretty important.

Champion Farmers Specify Firestone CHAMPION GROUND GRIPS

TO GET extra pulling power... longer tire life... and smoother riding, Champion Farmer John J. Gannon and his father specified Firestone Champion Ground Grips for their new tractor.

Tests show that Firestone Champion Ground Grips clean up to 100% more effectively, pull up to 62% more, last up to 91% longer, and roll smoother over highways than any other tractor tires. Important facts to cost-conscious farmers.

Only Firestone Champion Ground Grips are made with connected curved traction bars. These bars clean with a plowlike action... giving the Champions more pulling power. Extra tread rubber in the bar connections gives them a "Center Bite" in the heart of the traction zone. This, too, means more pulling power. The extra rubber in the connected tread increases tire strength... lengthens tire life... money-saving points you can't overlook.

Painting Cellar Floor

Rubber base paints frequently are used for painting cement floors and basements, because they are resistant to alkali which would otherwise affect some other types of paint. Before applying rubber base paints to a cement floor, any old paint should be removed with paint remover, all residue from the paint remover washed off with turpentine or mineral spirits, and the floor thoroughly dried out. A further precaution before painting cement cellar floors, either new or old, is to etch them with muriatic acid solution in the proportion of about one pint of acid to one gallon of water. If the acid solution is used the floor should be well rinsed to remove traces of the acid and then thoroughly dried before painting. Two coats of the rubber base paint then can be applied, being careful that the first coat is dry before the second coat is applied.

America's greatest furor was that created by Jenny Lind, the Swedish singer, during her concert tour (1946-1947) near Coler's.

Its extent is indicated by a collection of Londoners, owned by the New York Historical Society which contains, among its thousands of items, copies of the complete articles on which her name and portrait were used as a trademark of decoration, such as book covers, beds, whistles, wallpapers and even men's fancy-vest buttons.

New York State Leads the Nation In Big Output of Canned Apples

About Half of 15-Million-Bushel Crop Goes to Market in Form of Sauce, Juice and Other Delights; 1947 Pack to Be Near Normal Volume

New York State literally and figuratively "goes to town" with its big apple crop. While one or two other states may produce more apples, this State processes and cans more of them for commercial use than any other state, according to a recent issue of the Industrial Bulletin of the State Department of Labor.

About half of the 15,000,000-bushel crop of apples in this State went into the commercial pack last year. This output included about 33 per cent of the U. S. total of canned apples. Thirty-two of the largest processing firms, located mainly in the big "fruit belt" along Lake Ontario and in the Hudson Valley and Lake Champlain regions, turned out nearly 100,000,000 cans of the favorite fruit. In the pack were 60,000,000 cans of apple sauce, 19,800,000 cans of prepared apples, and 18,000,000 cans of apple juice.

State authorities estimated that the 1947 apple crop will be only slightly smaller than the one in 1946. However, the Hudson pyramids of canned, labeled fruit. From apple blossom time until the fruit goes into the pack, the element of time and speedy communication are mighty important factors in the results. And in various stages the State authorities provide vital aid.

These authorities by means of radio broadcasts, and chain telephone calls in emergencies advise the growers when to spray their orchards to combat scab and other diseases and deadly insects. After a heavy rain, the county agricultural agent may notify key growers by telephone, and these growers in turn call the other growers in their vicinity, advising them on spraying and dusting their trees.

About half of the crop of apples in this State went into the commercial pack last year. This crop included about 25 per cent of the total of canned apples. Thirty-five of the largest processing firms in the U. S. are in the "fruit belt" along Lake Ontario and in the Hudson Valley and Lake Champlain regions. These firms turned out nearly 100,000,000 cans of the favorite fruit. In the pack were 60,000,000 cans of apple sauce, 19,000,000 cans of prepared apples, and 19,000,000 cans of apple juice. Valley crop this year is one of the best on record.

New York's leadership in apples is said to be due to the inventive genius of its packers as well as the natural resources and industry of the apple growers. In Red Creek, N. Y., for example, there's a cannery that doubles as a scullery maid for apple-pie-baking as a cannery that does it wash

At big New York cannery, apples floated into plant. After being pared and cored by machines, they are inspected by workers (left) who sniff out any defects. Lower left: Canned fruit is crated for shipment.

During the big harvesting and canning season, which comes in the late summer and early fall, both growers and cannery call upon the New York State Employment Service for extra workers which are needed to pick the apples and process them in the canneries. In their post-war heyday, the canneries generally employed about six times more workers than during the rest of the year. While most of the workers are mustered in the vicinity of the factory, a telephone office may secure the necessary additional workers from more distant sources.

New York State stands next in the processing and canning of other fruits and vegetables, the pack having a greater variety than that of probably any other state. Possibly 80 per cent of the State's total pack is handled by the 88 active members of the New York State Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Role of Guardian Angel By Girls at Switchboard

At 2 o'clock in the morning in a small Long Island community, an operator answering a call at the telephone central office heard only the hysterical crying of a little boy at the other end of the line. She realized that this situation called for special handling, but other calls demanded her attention. She signalled for the night chief operator.

The chief took over with complete calm. In less than a minute her soothing voice had persuaded the child to stop crying. She learned that the boy's "Mummy" and his "Daddy" were not in the house, and that he was four years old and frightened. The chief Sales of milk from the New York milkshed last month to other markets under federal regulation totaled 226,504 pounds, compared with sales of 568,566 pounds in August, 1946, a decrease of 49.63 per cent. Sales of milk to markets under federal regulation dropped 8,751,112 pounds, or 17.78 per cent.

Traffic Shows Gain Following State Count

Traffic on the state highways leading to Hornell showed a decided increase this year over 1946, according to figures compiled at the State Highway Office there.

The basis of comparison was the traffic count taken on Saturday, August 8, from 7:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m. Although a traffic census was taken on Thursday between the same hours, those figures were not used in the comparison survey, since on Thursday count was taken last year.

YOUR 'PHONE MANNERS

Pleasant Voice and Courtesy 'On Line' Valuable Assets, Says Mrs. Freese

Most people in telephone conversations don't fully realize that they may be seen, that it is through their voice and manners alone that they are able to reflect their personality. They may talk too loud, too low, or fail to hold the telephone mouthpiece properly, and frequently display bad manners which may be detrimental to their business.

Gertrude Freese

That is the feeling of Mrs. Gertrude Freese, manager of the New York Telephone Company's Service Consultants phone group in the Manhattan Bronx Westchester Area. In a recent radio broadcast over Station WCHS, Mrs. Freese and her staff of six phone consultants are frequently called upon by business concerns to study and help train the telephone habits of their employees who are in frequent contact with the public.

It is a comparatively new function of the telephone business which has grown rapidly in demand, a service rendered only at the request of the subscriber.

Pointing out how good telephone habits make for good business and better relations in general, Mrs. Freese said: "What a difference it makes to that person at the other end of the line if the reception you give them is warm and friendly!"

Analysis of the telephone habits of any group of business employees is made by the service consultants confidentially and with utmost tact, according to Mrs. Freese. As a result of their findings, helpful suggestions and general training of the personnel may be made on their premises in the company's "voice studio," where electrical recordings of the voices are made to assist in the improvement program.

of the state's total production. New York State farmers, including those who are not members of the United Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, are urged to contact their local extension agent for information regarding the program.

TOWN'S 'NIGHT SENTINEL' FOR 44 YEARS, RETIRES

Forty-four years of service as the night telephone operator at the office board of her community service, Mrs. Lillian Deloit, retired recently from the New York Telephone Company.

Lillian Deloit

It was Mrs. Deloit who informed the police that a doctor might be located and saved that call got through, or that a stranded motorist calling from some highway telephone where a policeman could be found to repair his car. She also handled many emergency calls to the police, fire department and other community services.

Miss Deloit, who began her service in 1907, took the night shift as a beginner's assignment, but liked it so well that she preferred it thereafter.

A Jarrett party by the central office's personnel, marked by many expressions of appreciation, preceded her retirement.

Big Lot of 'Georges'

At a central office of the telephone company in Cleveland, Ohio, George does about everything you can think of. For of the total force of 25 men there, six are Georges. So the town man has to be careful not to make such general remarks as "How George comes here," lest all six appear.

Two brothers, one in Schenectady, N. Y., and the other in Canastota, Mich., by means of the long distance telephone, recently talked to each other for the first time in 44 years.

in the house, and that he was forty years old and frightened. The chief assumed the boy that his parents would be home soon, and asked him to go back to bed and try to sleep. The chief, however, was suggesting that if he should become homesick, he could pick up the telephone and talk to her.

The little boy did not talk again, but the chief called his name about two hours later to check on the situation. The child's mother was puzzled when the operator asked if the boy was all right. He was asleep when she and her husband returned home. Finally, the chief told her what had happened. A little later, the mother said it was the first time she had ever left the child alone. She thanked the operator quietly and sincerely.

Such incidents of special service are all in a day's work for operators in towns and villages everywhere.

Business of Being Brief Keeps Abbreviators Busy

Brevity, said to be "the spice of wit," is also a prime requisite when it comes to listing names and addresses in telephone directories. In large cities such as New York it is a big problem for the telephone company's abbreviators to fit in the listings, so they may be readily understood by telephone users and at the same time so the books will not become too voluminous for general use.

Some 14,000 different abbreviations, for instance, are necessary in fitting in the listings of the big city's telephone books, comprising a total of some 7,700 pages, says Russell W. Tompkin, in charge of abbreviating work for directories in the New York Telephone Company's Downstate Area. In many cases saving a single letter in a word saves an entire line, so the abbreviator has to be ever vigilant, though always with a reason and consistent with established methods of brevity followed by various directory compilers.

"Bus" in directory parlance, for example, doesn't mean a vehicle, but "business"; nor does "BID" mean "bored," "bed," or "bad"; it means "board." "Justice of the Peace" is cut to "his peck" and "key" means "key."

In the smaller communities, where space conservation is not so urgent, certain names can be given in more detail, says John W. Van Out, of Albany, abbreviator of the company's 122 directories in Upstate territory. In the 800-page book serving the metropolitan of Buffalo, however, the problem is similar to that in New York City.

Four tables of log measuring rules also appear in this leaflet. They are the tables used in New York State, the International, and the Glenn Falls or Altrincham Standard. The Scribner rule is used to some extent in the Southern Tier counties, but throughout the state the Doyle rule is applied more than any other, according to the leaflet.

DAIRYMEN TO GET $4.43 FOR THEIR AUGUST MILK

C. J. Blanford, market administrator of the New York metropolitan milk-collecting area, has announced that dairymen would receive a unit-weight for August milk deliveries to the 436 pool-approved plants in the New York milkshed.

The August producer butterfat differential will be 6.6 cents for each tenth of a pound above or below the 3.5 per cent standard, according to Mr. Blanford.

The August return this year is 19 cents below August, 1946, when the uniform price was $3.98 per hundredweight and a "super-pool" premium of 64 cents increased the return to $4.62.

For the first time since January the consumption of fluid milk last month in New York city and the counties of Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk was above that of last year. Utilization in this class of milk rose from 255,970,966 pounds to 260,824,227 pounds, an increase of 1.82 per cent.

Sales of milk from the New York milkshed last month to other market areas under federal regulation totaled 286,404 pounds, compared with sales of 568,506 pounds in August, 1946, a decrease of 49.63 per cent. Sales of milk to markets not under federal regulation dropped 8,751,112 pounds, or 17.78 per cent.

Total fluid milk consumption decreased from 305,765,636 pounds in August, 1946, to 301,385,623 pounds in August, 1947, a drop of 1.43 per cent, because of the decrease in the latter classes.

THIEVES ARE NOT CONDONED BY JUDGE HOPKINS

The Grand Jury in session here recently, for seven days, reported 23 open indictments against 12 persons charged with crime.

Woodrow A. Dayton, Wellsville, 31, married, machinist, proved to be the most indicted man of the 12 persons charged with crime. Seven charges of burglary, third degree, were voted, six in the Town of Wellsville, and most of them concerned with clubs. The dates of the burglaries and places are: December, 1946, broke into American Legion Club house; February 8, Servicemen's Club; May 12, store of Frank Carnes; same date, Wellsville Country Club; August 6, Elks Club, and August 8, Belliver Country Club. Dayton's lengthy, one-man crime wave came to an end in Olean where he was found spending too many quarters allegedly taken from "joke boxes."

George F. Budde, West Almond, a youth of 18, farmer, was charged with three third degree burglaries, as follows: April 1, granary of Sherman Hurd; April 16, granary of Glenn Wilcox, all breaking and entering to commit the crime of larceny. Role of Guardian Angel By Girls at Switchboard

At 2 o'clock in the morning in a small Long Island community, an operator answered a call at the telephone central office heard only the hysterical crying of a little boy at the other end of the line. She realized that this situation called for special handling, but either calls demanded her attention. She signalled for the night ebber operator.

The chief took over with complete calm. In less than a minute the child's wailing voice had persuaded the child to stop crying. She learned that the boy's "Mummie" and his "Daddy" were not in the house, and that he was four years old and frightened. The chief assured the boy that his parents would be home soon, and asked him to go back to bed and try to sleep. She comforted him by suggesting that if he should become lonesome, he could pick up the telephone and talk to her.

The little boy did not call again, but the chief called his home about two hours later to check on the situation.

For the first time since January the consumption of fluid milk last month in New York city and the counties of Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk was above that of last year. Utilization in this class of milk rose from 253,970,666 pounds to 260,624,227 pounds, an increase of 1.62 per cent.

Sales of milk from the New York milkshed last month to other market areas under federal regulation totaled 228,494 pounds, compared with sales of 263,566 pounds in August, 1946, a decrease of 49.63 per cent. Sales of milk to markets not under federal regulation dropped 8,751,112 pounds, or 17.78 per cent.

Total fluid milk consumption decreased from 305,765,636 pounds in August, 1946, to 301,385,623 pounds in August, 1947, a drop of 1.43 per cent, because of the decrease in the two latter classes.

Mr. Blanford said production was up 4.2 per cent although the 46,134 producers who supplied the marketing area last month were 439 fewer than the number in the pool a year previous. He attributed the increased production to greater production per day per dairy, which last month reached an average of 340 pounds, or 17 pounds a day above August, 1946.

Last month, receipts of milk at pool plants totaled 486,540,732 pounds, or 19,602,577 pounds more than deliveries of 466,938,155 pounds by 46,573 producers in August, 1946.

YOUR 'PHONE MANNERS

Pleasant Voice and Courtesy 'On Line' Valuable Assets, Says Mrs. Press

Most people in telephone conversations don't fully realize that they can't see each other, but that it is through their voice and manners alone that they are able to reflect their personality. They may talk too long, too low, or fail to hold the telephone mouthpiece properly, and frequently display bad manners which may be detrimental to their business. But by courtesy, self-reflection and improvement of their technique, they can turn bad telephone voices into good, pleasant ones.

That's the feeling of Mrs. Gertrude Press, manager of the New York Telephone Company's Extension Service West group in the Manhattan-Strom West group. In a recent radio broadcast over Station WGBS, Mrs. Press and her staff of six girl consultants are frequently called upon by business concerns to trade and help bring the telephone to their employees who Briefly, said to be "the spice of wit," is also a prime requisite when it comes to listing names and addresses in telephone directories. In large cities such as New York it is a big problem for the telephone company's abbreviators to fit in the listings, so they may be readily understood by telephone users and at the same time so the books will not become too voluminous for general use.

Some 14,000 different abbreviations, for instance, are necessary in fitting in the listings of the big city's telephone books, comprising a total of some 1700 pages, says Russell W. Temple, in charge of abbreviating work for direct-charge of the New York Telephone

New Log and Lumber Measuring Leaflet Out

A publication on log scaling, just released by the New York State College of Forestry, is designed to aid all persons dealing with logs and lumber and others who for various reasons desire to know the number of board feet in logs and sawed lumber.

The publication contains 13 illustrations showing how to make allowance for defects such as crook, decayed core, ring shake, fire scar and frost cracks. Four tables of log measuring rules also appear in this leaflet. They are the tables used in New York State. The Doyle, the Scribner, the International, and the Glenn, Falls or Aircraft Standard. The Scribner rule is used to some extent in the Southern Tier counties, but throughout the state the Doyle rule is applied more than any other, according to the leaflet.

Another feature of the publication is a table showing the number of board feet in standard sizes of sawed lumber. Copies of the leaflet are available without charge on request. Address: The New York State College of Forestry, Extension Department, Syracuse 10, N. Y.
