HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Let's Bake a Cake That's Feathery Light!
(See recipes below.)

Parade of Cakes

Now that the weather is cooler and we're spending less time outdoors, there's more call for mother's delicious cakes. A cake someone serves to top off evenings at home seems to be the youngsters' favorite when the youngsters have their school chums in for an evening or if guests drop in unexpectedly.

Week-ends, too, probably are full of light entertaining if the week is a busy one, and it's time the old custom of baking a cake on Saturday afternoon were reinstated.

How to Successfully Grow and Care For Your House Plants and Flowers

It is not enough to have been told that you should water your plants. You must know when to water them. The amount of water to give depends on the kind of plant and the weather. In general, most plants should be watered at least once a week and should be watered more often during the summer months. It is also important to know when to stop watering. If the soil is too wet, the plants will rot. If the soil is too dry, the plants will die. The best way to know when to water is to feel the soil. If the soil is dry to the touch, it is time to water. If the soil is moist, it is not time to water.

House Plants Ruined By Faulty Watering

Most people who buy house plants are told to water them. But they do not know when to water them. The result is that many house plants are ruined by faulty watering. The most common mistake is to water too often. This causes the soil to become waterlogged and the roots to rot. The second mistake is to water too little. This causes the plants to become dry and die.

Jackson's Death

Bonwell Jackson did not die on the battlefield. The Confederate general was wounded by his own men on a reconnaissance during the battle of Chancellorsville on May 2, 1863. He died eight days later in a little frame house at Guinea Station, Va.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well 24 hours every day, 7 days every week, every sleeping, the kidneys must waste matter from the blood. If more waste matter is not removed from the blood, it will build up and cause kidney trouble. This may lead to kidney stones, which are very painful. It is important to keep the kidneys working properly. The best way to do this is to drink plenty of water and eat a healthy diet. Doan's Pills are a good way to help the kidneys work better.

Ham 'n cornbread go a long way toward making any meal a success. Add finely diced ham to cornbread batter before baking. Serve with salads, soups and souffles for a flavor-bright combination. A never-to-be-forgotten rule when baking cakes, is to allow all the ingredients, especially the fat, eggs and liquid to come to room temperature before mixing. Their "compatibility" is increased tremendously and the texture of the cake improved.

Boy Helped Solve Problem Of Bridging Niagara Falls

When the first bridge over Niagara Falls was planned in 1849, the problem of getting a cable from the American to the Canada side was solved by offering $5,000 to the first person who could make a kite carry a string across the 800-foot chasm.

After this had been accomplished by a boy, the string was used to pull over a small steel cable which, for several years, enabled persons to go back and forth, two at a time, in a little wire basket.

The original steel suspension bridge throws across the river just below the American falls had a span of 820 feet, and was long considered to be a feat of engineering.

Vote Yes on Amendment 3

One of the important proposed constitutional amendments which will be voted on on Election Day is Amendment 3, which would revise the archaic procedures by which New York compensates its legislators. The amendment deserves the careful consideration of every thoughtful citizen.

Under the present system, salaries of assemblymen and state senators are rigidly fixed by the State Constitution. Unfortunately, however, the framers of the Constitution made no provision for the extra work required of many legislators during the months the lawmakers are not in session. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord.

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include: "Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death. . . . We know that all will be changed in the twinkling of an eye, when the last trump shall sound; but this last call of wisdom cannot come till mortals have already yielded to such lesser call in the growth of Christian character. ### Vote Yes on Amendment 3

One of the important proposed constitutional amendments which will be voted on on Election Day is Amendment 3, which would revise the archaic procedures by which New York compensates its legislators. The amendment deserves the careful consideration of every thoughtful citizen.

Under the present system, salaries of assemblymen and state senators are rigidly fixed by the State Constitution. Unfortunately, however, the framers of the Constitution made no provision for the extra work required of many legislators during the months the lawmakers are not in session. The result is that many legislative leaders and heads of important committees are required to be on the job all year round. As the state has expanded its services to meet the needs of its people, the work-load on all legislators has increased to staggering proportions. They are required to attend countless hearings, conferences, forums and meetings throughout the state. They must participate in the year-round work of their standing committees and in work of special Legislative Commissions on which they serve without extra pay.

If they are to participate intelligently in framing new laws, they must take the time to acquaint themselves with the complicated issues involved in numerous different fields. In addition to all this of countless chores for their constituents and attend to the needs of their districts, New York State pays its legislators $2,500 annually, unchanged since 1927, which is half of what Pennsylvania pays its lawmakers $4,000 and they have a session only

One of the important proposed ...
... constitutional amendments which ...
... will be voted on on Election Day is ...
... Amendment 3, which would revise ...
... the archaic procedure by which ...
... New York compensates its legisla- ...
... tors. The amendment covers the ...
... careful consideration of every ...
... thoughtful citizen.

Under the present system, salar- ...
... y of assemblies and state sena- ...
... tors are rightly fixed by the State ...
... Constitution. Unfortunately, howev- ...
... er, the framers of the Constitution ...
... made no provision for the extra ...
... work required of many legislators ...
... during the months the lawmakers ...
... are not in session. The result is that ...
... many legislative leaders and heads ...
... of important committees are re- ...
... quired to be on the job all year ...
... around. As the state has expanded its ...
... services to meet the needs of its ...
... people, the work-load on all legisla- ...
... tors has increased to staggering pro- ...
... portions. They are required to at- ...
... tend countless hearings, confer- ...
... ences, forums and meetings through- ...
... out the state. They must participate ...
... in the year-round work of their ...
... standing committees and in work ...
... of special Legislative Commissions ...
... which they serve without extra pay.

If they are to participate intelli- ...
... gently in framing new laws, they ...
... must take the time to acquaint ...
... themselves with the complicated is- ...
... sues involved in numerous different ...
... proposals. In addition to all this, ...
... of course, they must take care of the ...
... countless chores for their constitu- ...
... ents and attend to the needs of their ...
... districts. New York State pays its ...
... legislators $2,500 annually, unchanged ...
... since 1927, which is half of what ...
... Pennsylvania pays its councilmen ...
... $3,000 and they have a session only ...
... once in every two years.

One result of the unreasonable ...
... salary, which has been called "ab- ...
... surdly inadequate," may be that ...
... men and women will be able to run for ...
... the Legislature. A man who has to ...
... support his family cannot afford to ...
... devote a major part of his time to a ...
... job which nets him only $25 a week ...
... out of which must come a certain ...
... amount of travel and entertaining

The 26th National Observance of ...
... Children's Book Week is being ...

... 1947. The slogan around which ...
... libraries, schools and civic organi- ...

The poster, shown above, has ...

To activate this slogan, the Chil- ...
... dren's Book Council, 62 West 48th ...
... Street, New York City, which is ...
... also national Headquarters for ...
... Book Week information and also ...
... has initiated a special Book Week ...
... project for 1947. The Council tells ...
... us that at least eleven million ...
... American boys and girls are with- ...
... out access to library service or ...
... reading of any kind other than text ...
... books. This is a shocking fact ...
... coupled with the knowledge that ...
... the United States is also the home ...
... of the greatest children's book in- ...
... dustry in the world. The Council ...
... has therefore enlisted the help of two of its twenty-plus cooperating ...

... organizations, The Save the Chil- ...
... dren Federation and the Treasure ...
... Chest Campaign to put on the ...
... Treasure Chests U.S.A. program. ...
... This program was opened on Octo- ...
... ber first to encourage more fortu- ...
... nate communities to donate Treas- ...
... ure Chests of children's books to ...
... rural schools in the United States ...
... ($2,000 Treasure Chest books have ...
... already been donated and shipped ...
... to children overseas).

In its free manual which outlines ...
... this project, the Council says ...
... "State Extension services, book- ...
... mobiles and individual teachers ...
... have done much with limited funds ...
... to correct these conditions. It is ...
... hoped that Federal aid will soon ...
... release more help to these young ...

... but until that time comes we can ...
... all help to share the great wealth ...
... of American children's books with ...
... our own brothers and sisters in ...
... this new and easy way."

Among the many countries who ...
... have received chests in date are ...
... the Philippines, China, France, Bel- ...
... gium, Greece, Poland, Russia and ...
... Siam. Chests can now be shipped to ...
... former enemy countries and have ...
... been received already in Japan, ...

 Ammendment 3

One of the important proposed constitutional amendments which will be voted on on Election Day is Amendment 3, which would revise the archaic procedures by which New York compensates its legislators. The amendment deserves the careful consideration of every thoughtful citizen.

Under the present system, salaries of assemblymen and state senators are rigidly fixed by the State Constitution. Unfortunately, however, the framers of the Constitution made no provision for the extra work required of many legislators during the months the lawmakers are not in session. The result is that many legislative leaders and heads of important committees are required to be on the job all year round. As the state has expanded its services to meet the needs of its people, the work-load on all legislators has increased to staggering proportions. They are required to attend countless hearings, confer-

Street, New York City, which is
also national Headquarters for Book Week information and aids,
has initiated a special Book Week
project for 1947. The Council tells us that at least eleven million
American boys and girls are without access to library service or
reading of any kind other than text
books. This is a shocking fact,
coupled with the knowledge that
the United States is also the home
of the greatest children's book industry in the world. The Council
has therefore enlisted the help of two of its twenty-nine cooperating

organizations, The Save the Chil-

Chest Campaign to put on the
Treasure Chests U.S.A. program.
This program was opened on Octo-

Among the many countries who have received chests to date are
the Philippines, China, France, Belgium, Greece, Poland, Russia and Siam. Chests can now be shipped to former enemy countries and have been received already in Japan,
Germany and Austria. The Treasure Chest Campaign, though still an independent unit, is now working in cooperation with UNESCO.

Harry Gardener Writes Again

A young gal named Betsy Ann Blaine caught sight of a little brown snake and the screams she cut loose caused the snake to ramble and the earth beneath her "bootsies" to quake.

To The Editor:

I must beg your pardon for tossing that limberick at the top of the page but the darn thing kept me awake nights so I had to dump it somewhere and you are it. And now for a true snake story in which I was one of the participants. I picked up the evening paper after dinner and on the front page a two column picture of a little girl sitting up in a hospital bed. Underneath were the words, "Bitten by a Poisonous Snake". I read the story; in brief it was as follows:

"Little 'bright eyes' in the picture was a member of a rural picnic party. The children were playing hide and seek among the trees and brush, when somebody discovered a snake and, immediately the warning was given, 'Watch out, he may bite somebody.' At this point, little bright eyes obviously dominated by the 'show off' complex frequently present in children, dramatically cried out, 'He has already bitten me', and to prove it exhibited several small bleeding punctures high on the calf of one leg. The party broke up at once and the child and the mangled body of the poor little garter snake were rushed to one of DeWitt's teachers hospitals."

He has already bitten me and to prove it exhibited several small bleeding punctures high on the calf of one leg. The party broke up at once and the child and the mangled body of the poor little garter snake were rushed to one of Detroit's leading hospitals.

The facial sequel to the events mentioned above, occurred the next morning at the Zoo. I was busy seeing that everything was in "ship-shape" for the opening hour (about a half hour distant), when I was called to the main entrance to our building, where I met two gentlemen, one of whom introduced himself as Chief of staff in one of Detroit's leading hospitals and his companion as his assistant. Wrapped in a newspaper was a dead snake which they had taken to the main office of the Zoo where they were told that I might answer questions. The Chief said that they wished to know if the specimen in the paper was poisonous.

I unwrapped the specimen, a garter snake, and found it was indeed a garter snake. Then I recalled the front page picture, "Little bright eyes". They told me that this snake had bitten the little girl pictured in the paper. Thoughtlessly I laughed, the doctors were red faced and showing their teeth, so I told them that the snake was a common garter snake and that from Maine to Florida and from the Atlantic to the Mississippi about as numerous as robins and about as dangerous.

Then I asked them, were there any symptoms common in such cases? They did not know what the symptoms were in such a case. So I

Then I asked them, were there at the hospital from the distant pic-

Ike Reluctant; Taft Works Hard for Party Nomination

By BAUKHAGE

WASHINGTON.—Back before World War II started, I attended a party given by Mark Woods, (my present boss). One of the guests, with whom I had been associated on the Farm and Home Hour, came to me and said: "I want you to meet my brother. He's a lieutenant colonel in the army, and I think he's going places."

So we went back and I shook hands with a pink-cheeked, personable officer, exchanged a few words and drifted on. Shortly afterward (1939), I went to Europe, the war broke and the party was long forgotten.

Somewhat later, and often since, I have had occasion to remember the lieutenant colonel vividly. I have just been looking at a graph drawn in 1942 by that same lieutenant colonel (after he was awarded into it by a biographer). It shows his promotions from the time he was graduated from West Point in 1915.

In World War I, he reached a lieutenant colonelcy but after the armistice reverted to his "permanent" rank of captain.

He soon was promoted to a major (bonuses were slow in those days) and remained a major until 1934. From then until the time I met him at that party, he was a lieutenant colonel.

Two years passed and then things began to happen: Colonel in '41; brigadier general the same year.

He was promoted to a major rank of captain. He was promoted to a major rank of captain. He was promoted to a major rank of captain.

Two years passed and then things began to happen. Colonel in '41; major general in 1942; commanding general of the European theater of operations; then, in 1943, lieutenant general and commanding general, Allied Forces in the European theater—now, president of Columbia University (at maybe something bigger) to be.

Milton Eisenhower was right when he said his brother was "going places." It is in the volume "My Three Years With Eisenhower" by Harry Belafonte, his naval aide, that the chart appears. The chart shows that the general's rank was promoted to a major rank of captain. He was promoted to a major rank of captain.

Both were wrong. The government placed a fifth star on him, and the fifth pole has been transmitted into a cap and gown, as symbol of his new rank when he switches homes from Mars to Minerva. But if certain boosters have their way, the line on the chart may move upward again. I haven't heard what the general's rank in the last congress revealed. But that isn't all. One of Taft's critics, only representative of the Republican policy head, says the Republican policy head, says the Republican policy head, says the Republican policy head.

Unfortunately, Robert Taft hasn't that risible facility to re-leave a certain aloof remoteness of manner and expression. He is by no means a glutton-boy, and he knows it. One time when he was in the Senate, he was in the Senate, he was in the Senate.

Taft has some sense of humor, even if he isn't famous for it. Perhaps he absorbed it from his witty wife. He stands six feet tall and he isn't stout, although somehow or other you seem to think of him that Even the most ardent optimist could not call this phase of the food conservation drive to help Europe an instantaneous success, however, it might improve with time.

And it was in the handwriting on the wall that there would be considerable time, for administration experts predicted that the days of voluntary self-denial would last for at least six months. President Truman himself has set the dates for the interim emergency aid to Europe campaign—from December 1 to March 31—although that time limit was imposed specifically for the raising of 260 million dollars in cash. Regarding the food conservation aspect, Charles Lockman, head of the House food committee, said "Our only idea is to do the job until it is done. No time schedule has been set."

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson was a little more definite. He pointed out that conservation to save grain might be necessary until the winter wheat crop, now being planted, begins to come in next June and July. Then he offered a faint hope with a hollow ring: "Meatless days are not in the picture indefinitely," he said.

Meanwhile, brother Milton Eisenalso a "president"—president of Kansas State college, and very happy there. It was rumored that if he should "choose" to take a post which had been suggested for him—back in the department of agriculture (as secretary this time), when and if Clinton Anderson moved else-of the Truman cabinet, it would

Senator Taft Personifies GOP

Of course, it is more fun generalizing about generals than it is to particularize about the prime contenders in the candidates' elephant race to come. But, no matter how much political dust some dark or even chestnut roan stir up later, there are just two people the politicians have to consider now. They are Senator Taft of Ohio and Governor Dewey of New York.

I was standing with a group outside the executive offices of the White House, waiting for the presidential press and radio conference when a genial human cloud, much bigger than a man's hand, in fact almost twice as big as most men's shirts, appeared on the horizon. It was the politically astute and ardent officer, Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio.

The boys ragged Brown a little about the Taft trip, but he wasn't a bit down-hearted. Said he: "We didn't expect to bring ask a bunch of delegates. Taft asks votes for the Republican party, and that means votes for it." (Despite Brown's optimism, some observers have felt it although Taft did make a few friends, they weren't new ones, for they were already Republicans.)

Oh, I don't understand Taft well. There is no question about his intellect or his intellectual ability. Nobody could ask for a demonstration of political legislation side than his

...young—only 55. (I'm sure that's young because it's exactly my age.)

As Representative Brown intimated, Taft's speeches on his western tour, almost entirely devoted to the glorification of the Republican party's record in the first session of the 80th congress, helped strengthen the party. In fact, Taft generally is accepted as the personification of the Republican party—and well he might be—considering the manner in which he dominated the last session, maintaining the respect of the Democratic leaders which he always has had—if not their love and admiration, which he never has had.

SENATOR TAFT

EDUCATION GOES HIGHER

Danger Seen in Rising Fees

That great old American institution of "working your way through college," which oftentimes is a critical ordeal for the serious student, is showing signs of vanishing completely, and many young seekers-after-truth soon may find it impossible to get through college if they are not blessed with higher-income families to help them out.

A director of the office of education has expressed the fear that the rising cost of a college education soon would keep large numbers of able students outside the campus gates.

Effects of steadily mounting fees in the country's institutions of higher learning already would ex-

...from united in a solid front behind the final conversation plan.

Restaurant operators said their customers were growing about meatless and eggless diets.

Millions of Americans resisted the suggestion of a voluntary meatless Tuesday since they already are going without meat four or five days a week because they can't afford to buy it otherwise than about the poultry industry pointed out that if every one of the 140 million residents of the U. S. were to eat one less egg a week, the government would have to buy 600 million dozen eggs under the low requiring government support of parity prices and the government already holds in storage several million cases of surplus eggs purchased to support farm prices.

SECURITY RISKS: No Peace of Mind

Communism, particularly since the revival of the Comintern in nine European countries, is taking its toll in the U. S. by undermining the American peace of mind.

That obvious fact has been given added significance by the state department's disclosure that summary dismissal faces state department employees who are "habitual or close" associates of persons even
"believed to be" Communists.

New Method Devised For Treating Posts

A new method of treating fence posts and freshly sawed green lumber has been originated at the Lake States forest experiment station.
This procedure, the "dry salting" method, consists of applying a mixture of copper sulphate and sodium dichromate in powder form to the surface of freshly peeled green
posts and freshly sawed green lumber.

The mixture of these chemicals dissolves in a humid atmosphere and clings to the surface of moist posts and lumber when applied as a powder.
The method results in deep penetration of the preservative which appears to be firmly fixed in the wood so that it is not readily leached out. A definite advantage of this process over any other now available is that treatment can be concentrated at the ground line and top where more protection against decay is needed. The resulting posts have an attractive blue color which is not readily leached out, and tests indicate that the preservative is relatively noncorrosive to staples and wire.

Small Amount of Salt Needed by All Pigs

After several years of tests, the Missouri experiment station has found that hogs having free access to salt consume an average of only a fraction of an ounce per head daily. However, this small amount of salt caused these hogs to make much faster gains than hogs fed a similar ration without salt. The tests indicated that the best way to feed the salt is free choice in mineral mixture.

Recent surveys have proved that universities are depending more and more on student fees while they are confronted with rising costs. Fees, which used to account for about one-third of a college's income, now provide more than one-half of the total college educational expenditures.

The cost of going to college will be too high for many family budgets if student fees continue to go up and if no provision is made for increased financial support from other sources after the G. I. legis-

STELLA was as curious as any wife should be who's left her husband by a note telling him he can look after himself in the future, because she's fed up with his bad temper when he comes home evenings, and that she's just about had enough of cleaning and polishing and cooking in a three-room flat for a guy who's got as much sense of gratitude as an undertaker has a sense of humor.

She was curious because she'd never done this before; she'd never had time. They'd only been married three months, and that's not really long enough for a girl to know all about what happens when a wife gives her husband the air in writing. Anyway, the best way to see a thing, she decided logically, was to go to the place where it was happening and keep your eyes open.

It'd been two-fifteen in the afternoon when she had written the note, and by three-fifteen she'd changed her mind a few scores times, packed a suitcase with a few clothes, just for appearance, and closed the front door behind her with a firm resolution never to darken the threshold again until Bill went down on his knees and craved pardon.

Glancing around the only place she could think of from was under the bed cover, by lifting the fringe, she had a ring of the note on the dressing-table.

She'd be able to see his reaction when he read it, and then, if he didn't stagger out and do her stuff.

She crawled floorwards and wriggled her way into position. To be sure she couldn't have a cushion or two to help her get comfortable, but there wasn't space. The floor was mighty hard, and it wasn't possible

But the horror of the idea was as he sat heavily on the bed and changed his shoes. When he'd got the second shoe on he began to hum. It was a snappy, light hearted tune, the kind a man hums when his spirits are on the boom.

Anger welled up in Stella's heart. He wasn't in the least repentant. A hard, insensitive brute who could watch his quarter-year-bridal walk out on him like so much laundry. He had no feelings, and she felt she wouldn't care a hoot if he dropped dead on the floor beside her.

When he'd dressed she saw him,

She was curious because she'd never done this before; she'd never had time. They'd only been married three months, and she'd not really long enough for a girl to know all about what happens when a wife gives her husband the air in writing.

She wanted to see how Bill reacted to that note on the dressing-table: whether he took it on the chin and went out to face the world, dauntless and witless, or whether he crumpled.

Anyway, the best way to see a thing, she decided logically, was to go to the place where it was happening and keep your eyes open.

It'd been two-thirty in the afternoon when she had written the note, and by three-fifteen she'd changed her mind a few score times, packed a suitcase with a few clothes, just for appearance, and closed the front door behind her with a firm conclusion never to darken the threshold again until Bill went down on his knees and craved pardon.

Knowing Bill was due home at five o'clock, the thought occurred to her that unless she hurried she'd miss the show, and if she did that no one would forgive her, least of all herself.

The threshold was darkened once again as she entered the fat, but she didn't look at it that way. After all, maybe she'd been a little harsh with the darling boy; perhaps there was something in this jaded business man notion, or else why did movie magazines make pictures of them? And then — the specter flashed like a lively nightmare through her mind—there was a chance, an awful chance, that Bill would kill himself with that gun he'd bought during the burglar scare. He might even take to drinking his head off with his pay envelope, or put his head in the oven.

In fact, there were quite a number of things he might do, and Stella began to think she'd been led back to the fat by some Fate which had a personal interest in the destiny of young couples.

When he'd dressed she saw him, when his eyes were on the looser. Anger welled up to Stella's heart, she wasn't in the least repentant. A hard, desperate lunge she could watch his quarter-year-oldest walk out on him like an angry laundry. He had no feelings, and she felt she wouldn't care a lot if he dropped dead on the floor beside her.

He had no feelings, and she felt she wouldn't care a lot if he dropped dead on the floor beside her.

She crawled forward and nudged her way into position. She couldn't bare a cushion or bed to help her get comfortable, but there wasn't space. The door was mighty hard, and it wasn't possible to move much, because the under-side of the mattress was so close; an inch lower and she couldn't have squeezed in at all.

Just as her pose was reproducing the first stage of paralysis, the front door opened and Bill came into the hall with a hearty "Hello, darling! You there?"

A few strides and he was in the bedroom. He saw the note and squinting between the frills of the bed-cover, Stella watched him read it, peer at it, turn it over, and then fold it away in his pocket.

still humming, write something on the back of her note, fold it in reverse way, and replace it in its original place on the dressing table.

Then he brushed his suit carefully, fixed his tie straight, gave himself the once-over in the mirror, and went into the hall.

Immediately the front door closed Stella wormed her way out from underneath the bed and snatched at the note. This must be some kind of clue to his movements.

She read: "It's much softer ON the bed."

I think that this man has hit upon one of the most vital subjects in the whole field of improving your life—an expressed interest, a sustained interest, a lively interest in the other person.

If you develop that, though you may have none of the other attributes of charm or appearance, you will have a priceless aid in becoming more popular.

And if you want to see how few people actually have developed it, give those with whom you are thrown into contact the same personality test that this man described to me—talk to a person about yourself a little while, then interrupt. Probably six out of ten won't ask you to get back on the subject.

I'll wager that the four out of ten who do are the ones you like and respect the most.

ELLA was as curious as any wife should be who's left her husband telling him he can look himself in the future, because he'd just about had enough of the coming home evenings, and she's just about had enough of the three-room flat for a guy who's a much sadder of gratitude as a fertilizer has a sense of humor.

She'd be able to wait for action when he read the note, if he didn't stray but went to the drawer where she was kept instead.

She crawled floorward and wiggled her way into position, so she couldn't have a cushion, but there wasn't space. The note was mighty hard, and it wasn't possible for a girl to know all about what happens when a wife gives her husband the air in writing. She wanted to see how Bill reacted to that note on the dressing table; she took it on the chin and to face the world, faultless, or whether he'd crumple.

The best way to see a decided logically, was to place where it was happening—fifteen in the afternoon she'd changed few score lines, packed with a few clothes, just see, and closed the front door with a firm resolution to darken the threshold if Bill went down on his saved pardon.

 Glancing around the only place she could think from was under the bed, by lifting the fly cover, she had a risk of the note on the dresser.

Just as her pose was becoming the first stage of paralysis, the door opened and Bill came in, a hall with a heavy "Hello, Hello!"

You there?"

A few strides and he was in the bedroom. He saw the note on the bed-cover, Stella watched him squint between the fringe of the bed-cover, Stella watched him peer at it, turn it over, and find it snug in his pocket.

There was dead silence as she stood beside the dressing table, staring blankly into space; for just whether to use a gun or not was what Stella supposed. She was all set to haul herself out the window when he made for the drawer where the weapon lay. Instead, he opened his wardrobe and, with a deep sigh, took out a suit—a good suit, which he put on.

Stepping out to discuss the problem with a friend, thought Stella, or

Then he brushed his suit carefully, flared his tie straight, gave himself the once-over in the mirror, and went into the hall.

Immediately the front door closed. Stella wormed her way out from underneath the bed and snatched at the note. This must be some kind of clue to his movements.

She read: "It's much softer on the seat."

"Whenever I take a young woman out to dinner for the first time," he explained, "I begin talking. She doesn't know it, but I am giving her a personality test."

"I tell her of some experience of mine. I don't talk about things I'm sure would bore her, but I try to make one of my experiences interesting to her."

"I say something like this: 'I had an interesting weekend a couple of weeks ago. Some amazing things happened to me. It was really funny.' And then I interrupt myself. 'Is that draft bothering you?' I'll ask."

"Then what's the next step?" I asked him.

"Why, I wait to see if she'll ask what happened to me on my trip or whether she will forget it and talk about something else."

"Most of them ask you to go on, don't they?"

"They do not. That's just the trouble. That's why I say that the average man or woman misses a fine opportunity to develop lasting and interesting friendships by not taking a deeper interest in the other person and in what he is saying."

I think that this man has hit upon one of the most vital subjects in the whole field of improving your life—an expressed interest, a sustained interest, a lively interest in the other person.

If you develop that, though you may have none of the other attributes of charm or appearance, you will have a priceless aid in becoming more popular.

And if you want to see how few people actually have developed it,

September Milk Price Is Set at $4.60 Cwt.

A uniform price of $4.60 a hundredweight will be paid milk producers for September deliveries to 426-pool approved plants in the New York milkshed, the Metropolitan Milk Marketing Area's market administrator, C. J. Blanford, says. The figure compares with a uniform price of $4.76 in September, 1946. Simultaneously, Mr. Blanford announces a September butterfat differential for producers of 6.2 cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or under the 3.5 per cent standard. Payments for storage cream totaling $136,552, equivalent to three cents a hundredweight of the total milk deliveries, were paid to dealers from the September producers' settlement fund.

The report says that dealers storing cream during top production months and using it for making cream cheese, butter or ice cream sold outside New York city in short production months are entitled to receive storage-cream payments. The payments represent the difference between the class prices of storage cream and the class prices of manufactured products.

Total milk production was 7.12 per cent above that of last year, Mr. Blanford states, the highest per dairy per day during any September in the history of the federal-state marketing order. The mark was set in the face of a loss to the...

The county treasurer was authorized to borrow up to $1,000 for the work of the workmen's compensation committee until tax collection time in 1948. Executive Secretary Dennis G. Perkins said the committee had expended about $7,000 since November 1, 1946, and was facing payment of a death claim of $2,500 and $200 funeral expenses and $1,500 for a woman's disability claim, all with only $1,500 on hand.

State Taking Bids In Christmas Trees

The New York State Conservation Department will open bids next Tuesday, October 22, for the sale of Christmas trees to be cut from State Reforestation Areas for the 1947 holiday season. Commissioner of state cars, said to have been five in number, made their course difficult to follow for motorists who established many roadblocks and were not too far behind their quarry at any time and during the hour of escape their capture was imminent.

Misadventure came to the Hamilton party, when, following a hair-raising trek of hundreds of miles, young Slocum, who is believed to have been the car handy man, stole an automobile in an Indiana city which was quickly reported to the police.

A police sergeant of Charleston, Indiana, reports, according to newspaper stories, that a patrolling transport spotted the stolen car and immediately set up a "road-block" by means of his radio equipment.

When the fugitives took to a head-on collision, Gordon and Slocum were captured with truckload from a nearby store on the hand of an officer, following a command to stop.

Empson, after escaping in the third number, either escaped in the darkness or wasn't with his companions and is loose in that immediate vicinity. Gordon and Slocum are both judged to be in a Pennsylvania hospital, Gordon being badly shot up and not expected to live.

The captured men admitted their identity.

The story takes on its local angle when it becomes known that young Slocum is a son of Bob Slocum and was born in the County Seat, the member of a large family when he resided here.

At press-time today, Sheriff Jones reports that a recent telephone communication with Indiana police is to the effect that "Gordon is still in bad shape, Empson is still at large and Slocum is being patched."

Reid was taken to Merry Hospital, Buffalo, with head and chest injuries, while Allen Whitwood was taken to the same hospital for

...the necessary compensation... Executive Secretary Denzil G. Perkins said the committee had expended about $7,000 since November 1, 1946, and was facing payment of a death claim of $2,000 and $200 funeral expenses and $1,500 for a firm's disability claim, all with only $2,500 on hand.

The story takes on its local interest when it becomes known that Stinson is a son of Bob Stinson, who was born in the County Park area member of a large family who resided here.

Well-Known Firework
Manufacturer Is Now
Free On Parole

American Antonelli, 53, of Rochester, former munitions manufacturer convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the production of defective grenades, has been freed on parole.

Antonelli entered Lewisburg Penitentiary November 8, 1946, and on April 4 was transferred to Rochester Genesee Hospital, reportedly seriously ill with a heart ailment. More than six months of his two-year federal prison term were served in the hospital.

Antonelli's sons-in-law, John and Joseph De Rita, and Dominick Bar-bolla, business associates who were convicted with Antonelli, were released from the prison on parole several months ago.

The story is of interest locally inasmuch as the men involved are fireworks manufacturers and did work here for the fair.

Petitions have been signed by taxpayers and will be presented to the Alfred Station Town Board, asking establishment of a lighting district for this unincorporated village.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Coleman of Wellsville celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently.
