Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "The starting-point of divine Science is that God, Spirit, is All-in-all, and that there is no other might nor mind... that God is Love, and therefore He is divine Principle. To grasp the reality and order of Being in His Science you must begin by reckoning God as the divine Principle of all that really is, Spirit, Life, Truth, Love, combine as one—and are the Scriptural names for God. All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause and effect belong to God. These are His attributes, the eternal manifestations of the infinite divine Principle, Love..... The God-principle is omnipresent and omnipotent. God is everywhere, and nothing apart from Him is present or has power" (pp. 275, 473).

POPPING CORN

Popcorn pops by steam power, and poppers get the best results, when the kernels contain between 14 and 15 percent of moisture. The moisture requirement is the same for the old type open-pollinated corn and the new high-yielding hybrid kind that has 25 to 30 percent more expansion.

Good results in popping corn depend on how the corn is kept just as much as on its condition when bought. Much of the popcorn now available is in small quantities in unmedically sealed cans at the proper moisture content for best popping. When one of these cans is opened, the corn not to be used at once can be kept at the right moisture content by sealing in a glass fruit jar, using a rubber ring.

Most householders have no quick and easy way to find the moisture content of loose popcorn, but popping a sample will give some indication. If the corn pops well, leaving few grains unpopped, the rest of the batch may be kept in this condition indefinitely by closing tight in rubber-sealed jars.

If the corn does not pop well and seems too dry, it may be improved by sealing in a fruit jar with a few drops of water added.

Some home corn popping fans follow a rule of thumb method that seems to work well in moderately humid climates. They keep the shell-ed corn hanging in a cloth bag on a ceiling hook on the porch in fall, winter and spring and near the floor

BRIGHTEN THE CORNER
Sometimes a room hides its light not under a bushel but under an unnoticed layer of dust. Even a very thin film of dust can obscure considerable light, household management specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture says. If the house suddenly looks dim and gloomy now that dark weather is here, it may need a little extra dusting and polishing of all light centers — the lamp bulbs and the shades, mirrors and windows as well as decorative objects that catch and reflect cheerful gleams.

Dust often clings to volatile oil from cooking or smoke which has settled on light bulbs, windows and mirrors. Washing is usually a better way to remove greasy dust than dusting.

CHAPTER XIX

I knelt beside Joey for a moment, then straightened. He had been dead when he hit the floor. Renee was still waiting by the desk. The fat doublef against her side seemed darker. Her body swung lightly up into my arms. I carried her out into the corridor. We were lucky. The stinks hadn't started on the top floor and hadn't gnawed their way down yet. I started downstairs.

"Bob," she said suddenly.
"Sorry. This is just Andy."
Her eyes opened. "Bob used to carry me like this."
"Did he?"

"He used to say I ought to try out for the ninety-pound team."
"You could still make it."

"I mustn't talk about myself," she whispered. "You still have work to do. Did you understand that he went into the powerhouse? He took the black-light set with him. He can attach it and signal through one of those slots near the roof. Don't let my trouble earlier in trying to untangle a gun from my pocket. I walked across white sand to the powerhouse. I thought about Renee, and the building blurred and I had to gulp knots out of my throat. The door was slightly ajar. I kicked it open and went in.

The fat man straightened slowly. He had been crouching on a narrow platform, adjusting the blacklight set to hear out through a seaward loophole. Light from a single electric bulb flashed on his glasses. The room was filled with the shudder and whine of the dynamo, and at first I could not hear what he was saying.

Finally I caught a sentence. He had said, "This time we will not be interrupted."

I moved carefully toward the platform. There were steps leading up to it but this time I wasn't going to hand him any presents by making a rush. The platform wasn't wide. I could stay on the floor and yank him down. When he saw I wasn't charging he started down the steps. His round polished head hunched beclamped my fingers around the waffle pattern of the hand grenade. It felt good. It would raise hell in this concrete room. I wouldn't have picked a room like this for my first lesson in using a hand grenade, but the selection was limited. He had the gun up now. It steadied on me. I cocked my arm and thought: this is for Dartmouth. And I burned it down the groove at him.

Flame slashed at me. A blast of noise seemed to stave in my eardrums like old barrels. I closed my eyes and let things go dark . . .

When I opened them again, ages later, I heard myself mumbling, "I got the guy I got the guy I got the guy I—"

Someone tugged at my arm, argued with me.

For some reason I was walking. I complained, "Why don't you let a guy stay in bed after he's blown to bits? This is a hell of an army walking a guy around and around . . ."

"Andy! Oh, Andy, please!"

The fog swirled around in my head and smoked quietly away. Arab was clinging to my arm, laughing and crying. We were walking through sand. The fragment of moon I had seen ages ago was still skimming through the night sky.

I growled, "Where's the hospital? What am I doing here? That grenade tore me to bits."

"Oh, Andy," she choked, "it didn't

"I'd like to say I ought to be...
 "The door will be open, Andy. He expected Joey and me to follow him."
 "I'll make sure he doesn't get lonely."
 I picked my way through a jumble of furniture on the first floor, kicked the back door open. The guard, the man who had kidnapped Paula Thompson, was still huddled beside the steps. But he was off the hook as completely as Joey. His head lolled at a queer angle. Apparently the fat man didn't like to leave unsolved problems lying around; the guard might have talked, later. I carried Renea well back from the house and placed her gently on the sand.
 Her eyes were feverish, and she gasped, "I used to be afraid. Afraid of dying. Afraid for my people in Brittany. Afraid that the Germans could not be beaten. Now I am not afraid. It is worth dying to beat the Germans. Tonight I stood at the window and when the guns fired the third time I found that I was no longer afraid."
 I said gruffly, "You always did have what it takes."
 "I—I'm sorry you saw how I acted toward the powerhouse—"with him. It wasn't really me."
 "I know it wasn't."
 "Will Bob understand?"
 Feet scuffed in the sand and Arab ran up to us. She dropped to her knees, spilling an armful of loot. "How is she?" she gasped. "I grabbed a tablecloth. You'll have to rip it into bandages, Andy. My fingers—"

I moved carefully toward the platform. There were steps leading up to it but this time I wasn't going to hand him any presents by making a rush. The platform wasn't wide. I could stay on the floor and yank him down. When he saw I wasn't charging he started down the steps. His round polished head lunched between his shoulders. The long fat arms swung out, fingers stroking the air ahead of him. He was three steps up when I reached the bottom of the stairs. Suddenly he whirled, dropped to his hands. A foot lashed at my throat. I was waiting for it. I jerked back my head, caught the foot with my left hand and flipped it. The fat man crashed down.
 I locked a foot around his ankle to steady myself, ripped hooks into his left kidney with my free hand. His bent back was a sweet target. Like socking a drum, I pounded him three times. He grunted, jerked upright. Something tore agonizingly at my locked arm. I dug into his kidney once more and then he whirled around and let me fly off at the wall.
 It wasn't a clean toss. I hit spinning, felt skin burn off one shoulder. But I kept on my feet. My right forearm ached. A curved flap hung loose three inches above the wrist. It was lucky, though. His teeth had missed the artery... and rabies takes a long time to kill a man.
 "Just for that," I mumbled, "we'll see how you like blinking glass out of your eyes."
 And suddenly he broke and ran. Ran sobbing along the wall and up the steps onto the platform. At the top he swung around. I could hear his breath whistling above the dynamo. He jerked and tore at a pocket. For a second I goggled up stupidly at him. He was yanking out his gun. His hand wavered up, faltered, rose again. The slide of the automatic had a greasy blue shine.
 I ripped open my undershirt and Arab was slinging my arm, laughing and crying. A fragment of moon I had seen some days ago was still skimming through the night sky.

 I growled, "What's the hospital? What am I doing here? That grenade tore me to bits."
 "Oh, Andy," she smiled, "it didn't go off! You aren't really wounded. Just a bitten arm and a lot of bruises and—"
 "Just that, huh? And why didn't the grenade go off? One of your lousy defective German grenades. I'll get off a military letter with nineteen indictments and see about these defective grenades."
 She nuzzled my arm and quivered with an assortment of laughs and sniffls. "They don't ever go off unless you pull the pin!" she moaned. "You didn't pull the pin!"
 "They ought to give directions on the things. How would I know you had to pull a pin? What happened to the fat man?"
 She shuddered slightly.
 "Well?"
 "Andy, you ought to know with a..."
 "Did I hit him?"
 "If you can throw grenades as hard as that, we'll have some special ones made up for you, with a flash and there was an awful... makes an awful racket in a... huh?"
 "He missed you?"
 "Yes, darling. And I've been walking you down for five minutes to wash your face."
 Arab took a deep breath and clung to me. Her lips felt cool and soothing. "Andy," she whispered, "I won't ever try to stir things up again. From now on I'll be a mouse."
 I scrubbed my hand over my aching face, peered at the flaming house and distant torch charges. "If you're going to be a mouse," I said solemnly, "God help the cats."

to rip it into bandages, Andy. My fingers—"

Renee pressed the stained fist harder into her side. "Let me alone," she said sharply. "The U-boat. You must warn the ships about it. You must go after that man in the power-house."

Arab bent and kissed her. "I brought Joey's flashlight," she said. "And I brought that international code book you were using. I can work the flashlight with my thumb and warn the destroyer. Andy will do the rest."

Renee smiled. Her head drooped onto the sand. Her lips moved. I leaned close. She was crooning an elfin melody. For a moment I could see Renee and her big Dartmouth kid hanging over their balcony, watching moonlight on the Seine and humming a quaint little college tune. I don't think there could have been any homesickness in the way Bob had sung it, because there wasn't any now. She whispered it softly: Dartmouth will shine tonight, Dartmouth will shine . . . Dartmouth will shine tonight, Dartmouth will shine . . . Dartmouth will shine . . . When the sun goes down and the moon comes up . . . Dartmouth . . . will . . . shine . . .

It was almost gay, almost a challenge. The elfin whisper faded. She lay there quietly, smiling up at the Dartmouth moon. From the look on her face, Bob must have been waiting.

I got up stiffly.

"Take the shotgun," Arab said. "I can't handle a shotgun. Let 'em know about the sub."

She pushed something into my hand. "Take this, then. Please take it, Andy."

It was the hand grenade from the fat man's arsenal. I stuffed it inside my undershirt, remembering

His long polished head hunched behind his shoulders. The long fat arms swung out, fingers stroking the air ahead of him. He was three steps up when I reached the bottom of the stairs. Suddenly he whirled, dropped to his hands. A foot lashed at my throat. I was waiting for it. I jerked back my head, caught the foot with my left hand and flipped it. The fat man crashed down. I locked a foot around his ankle to steady myself, ripped hooks into his left kidney with my free hand. His bent back was a sweet target. Like socking a drum. I pounded him three times. He grunted, jerked upright. Something tore agonizingly at my locked arm. I dug into his kidney once more and then he whirled around and let me fly off at the wall. It wasn't a clean toss. Humidity for Apples

The successful storage of apples depends on the absence of mold and rot. When apples show signs of rotting or shriveling, it is an indication that the surrounding atmosphere is too humid. Humidity is low, according to Purdue University. The degree to which the moisture from the produce, thus the apple shrinks, results from warm and moist temperatures and lack of proper ventilation. Containers should be open and kept off the floor and away from the wall. Apples should be stored at 34 to 38 degrees and 75 to 85 per cent humidity. Ventilation, and proper temperature and humidity are essential.

Nitrogen Lack Shows In Farm Crop Colors

Pale Green Often Means Low Protein Content

The cause responsible for the pale green color and stunted growth of many winter wheat fields of small grains last year was lack of nitrogen, according to W. H. Pierre, head of the agronomy department of Iowa State college.

Corn shows nitrogen application.

And nitrogen deficiency was also to blame for the "firing" or drying up of the lower leaves of corn in many of the midwestern fields, Dr. Pierre noted.

"Nitrogen is the plant food element that gives crops their normal, dark green color and their fresh appearance throughout the growing season."

Corn shows nitrogen application.

And nitrogen deficiency was also to blame for the "dying" or drying up of the lower leaves of corn in many of the midwestern fields, Dr. Pierre learned.

"Nitrogen is the plant food element that gives crops their normal, dark green color and their fresh appearance," he declared. "Without enough nitrogen, plants become pale green and stunted. In corn when nitrogen is lacking, the upper leaves turn yellow near the midrib and may gradually die."

"Farmers sometimes mistake nitrogen deficiency in corn for drought stress. Where small grains and grasses are concerned, a lack of nitrogen not only results in pale-green color but later in maturity and lower yields."

"One of the most serious effects of nitrogen deficiency is a low protein content in crops, for proteins cannot be formed without nitrogen. This has an indirect effect in meat and dairy cattle, for low protein crops have a low feeding value."

Dr. Pierre pointed out that there are three ways in which nitrogen can be added to the soil. One is through the growth of legumes, another is through the use of manures and crop residues and the third is through the use of fertilizers containing nitrogen.

GROWTH IN RURAL PHONES TOPS RATE IN THE CITIES

Rural telephones in New York State, installed in residence locations, have increased at a faster rate in the past two years than have residence telephones in cities of the State, according to the New York Telephone Company. Some 23,000 telephones were added in rural areas served by this company in the two-year period to 1945, an increase of 46%. Since the first of this year, 1,980 more rural telephones have been added, bringing the present total to about 74,200.

Two typical cities of the State, not including New York City, showed during the five-year period an increase of about 20% in residence telephones. These included a number which experienced unusual wartime growth, such as Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Schenectady and Utica.

Rural telephone development during that time would probably have been much greater, the company points out, but for the heavy demands for communication equipment and services for war.

Secrets of Radar, Our 'Magic Eye' That Helped Win War, Are Revealed

Electronic Marvel Enabled Gunners to 'See' Targets Miles Away, Despite Fog or Blackest Night; Aided Defeat of U-Boats, Buzz Bombs

Radar, one of the great secret weapons of the war, has been bared to the public through recent announcements by the United States Army and Navy and the British Government. Industrial organizations and institutions which did the vast amount of engineering and research on the subject, and made and developed numerous types of radar, also have revealed their behind-the-scenes scientific triumphs.

The electronic "eyes" of radar has revolutionized warfare. It "sees" through the heaviest fog and the blackest night. It instantly maps the presence and location of otherwise unknown objects for the gunner aboard ship, on land or in the air. It does this by using radio echoes to spot and visualize on a screen the distant enemy ship or plane or other targets.

Radar helped Britain turn back the high tide of the Luftwaffe in 1940 by detecting the approaching planes on her own ships and planes. It helped win the Battle of the Atlantic by making U-boats easy prey compared with their former ability to hide and strike with out warning. It helped defeat the buzz bomb menace to Britain and recently was effective in helping our B-29s much larger group of scientists and engineers than any other industrial organization working on radar, while Western Electric, with the aid of hundreds of sub-contractors, has supplied more radar systems than any other manufacturer. Up to June 30, 1946, it had supplied the Government with 52,930 such systems of 64 different types. These were valued at more than $200,000,000, or more than 30 per cent of that of the total radar output for the armed forces.

By the last quarter of 1944, more than 40 per cent of Western Electric Company's personnel were engaged in the manufacture of all types of radar equipment.

All large guns of the U. S. Navy are pointed by radars designed by Bell Laboratories and made by Western Electric. The Laboratories, pioneering in research on electrical computing portions of the radar bomb-sight, also the behavior of electrons, which stresses the influence of contrast between similar fields, appears the photo magnified above. It shows the same, when Lab. Telephone Laboratories on this class of the problems of transmittal development.

After graduating from Brooklyn College in 1942, Miss Shapiro spent a year and a half with the Telephone and Radio Corporation and then joined the high frequency engineering department of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

For many months Miss Shapiro's work at the Labor Corps was strictly on secret war projects. In addition she continued her studies, taking courses in radio and engineering at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and New York University.

Hand-Crank 'Phone Ears An Honorable Discharge

Though still doing a good job in many a rural home and line of business, the hand-crank telephone is slated for final retirement under its post-war plans of the New York Telephone Company.

In Update New York City, the company's telephone manual shows about 24,600 of hand-crank type of phones will be left by the end of 1950. The present program is not interrupting the 1940, before defense and then reports that it interfered, the company's hand-crank telephones with improved equipment, converting to dial operation the 150 central offices serving these telephones.

Now the company has announced the replacement of hand-crank telephones as a part of the general program for the improvement and extension of its rural service.

Potatoes and Hops

The chief jumping-off point for tactical cargo and passenger planes headed for Europe during the war was Presque Isle, away up in Aroostook County, in northern Maine. Before the war, when potatoes were Aroostook's main interest, 10 operators served Presque Isle's 1,349 telephones and handled calls that came in during the war

Aided Defeat of U-boats

Radar, one of the great secret weapons of the war, has been heralded to the public through recent announcements by the United States Army and Navy and the British Government. Industrial organizations and institutions which did the most amount of engineering and research on the subject, and made the developed sensitive types of radar, also have revealed their behind-the-scenes scientific triumphs.

The electronic "eye" of radar has revolutionized warfare by passing through the heaviest fog and the blindest night. It instantly sends the presence and location of adverse submarines or ships for the planes above and on land or in the air. It does this by using a radio wave to spot and visualize on a scale across the ocean ship or plane or other targets.

Radar helped Britain turn back the high tide of the Luftwaffe in 1940 by detecting the approaching planes. On our own ships and planes, it helped win the Battle of the Atlantic by making U-boats easy prey compared with their former ability to hide and strike without warning. It helped defeat the buzz bomb menace to Britain and recently was effective in helping our B-24s much larger group of scientists and engineers than any other industrial organization working on radar, with Western Electric, with the aid of hundreds of subcontractors, has supplied more radar systems than any other manufacturer. Up to June 30, 1945, it had supplied the Government with 62,300 such systems of 64 different types. These were valued at more than $800,000,000, or more than 30 per cent of that of the total radar output for the armed forces.

By the last quarter of 1944, more than 40 per cent of Western Electric Company's personnel were engaged in the manufacture of all types of radar equipment.

All large guns of the U. S. Navy are pointed by radars designed by Bell Laboratories and made by Western Electric. The Laboratory, pioneering in research on electrical computing

Men now in the Army who reenlist before February 1 will be reenlisted in their present grade. Men honorably discharged can reenlist within 20 days after discharge in the grade they held at the time of discharge, provided they reenlist before February 1, 1946.

There's a long list of attractive reenlistment privileges in the new Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945. The ability to keep your present grade is only one of them, but this privilege expires on January 31.

There are plenty of other reasons why many thousands of men have enlisted, and more thousands are enlisting every day. You'll certainly want to know all of the opportunities open to you. If you'll read them carefully, you'll know why a job in the new peacetime Regular Army is being regarded today as "The Best Job in the World."

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW ENLISTMENT PROGRAM

1. Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men now in Army with 6 months' service.)
2. Enlistment age from 17 to 34 years, inclusive, except for men now in Army who may reenlist at any age.

4. The best pay scale, medical care, food, quarters and clothing in Army history.
5. An increase in the reenlistment bonus to $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service.
6. Up to 30 days' paid furlough, depending on length of service, with furlough travel paid to home and return, for men now in Army who enlist.
7. A 30-day furlough every year at full pay.
8. Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to reenlist.
9. Option to retire at half pay for life after 20 years' service—increasing to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. All previous active Federal military service counts toward retirement.
10. Benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.
11. Family allowances for the term of enlistment for dependents of men who enlist before July 1, 1946.
12. Opportunity to learn one of more of 200 skills and trades.
13. Choice of branch of service and overseas theater in the Air, Ground or Service Forces on 3-year enlistments.

destroy strategic targets in Japan. Useful in both offensive and defensive naval warfare, radar has helped us sink enemy battle fleets many miles away with uttering accuracy at night and in all kinds of weather. It has been equally effective in aiding navigation at sea or in planes aloft.

Many scientists of the United States and Britain, both civil and military, helped develop radar to its highest degree of effectiveness. As a pre-war leader in the field of electrical communications, however, the Bell Telephone System's extensive research and manufacturing organizations, the Bell Telephone Laboratories and the Western Electric Company, made outstanding contributions.

The Bell Laboratories have had a developed a new type of computer which makes much of the bombing problem automatic. In the plane aloft the machine supplies the automatic pilot with complete information to steer the plane and automatically drops the bombs at the release point.

Also a pioneer in designing and making test equipment for radar systems, the Bell organization has developed more than 100 different test sets and made 40,000 such sets in 1944. These sets are said to be "more exact, precise and intricate than radars themselves."

At a training school set up by Bell Laboratories during the war more than 4,000 Army and Navy men were trained in operating and maintaining radar equipment.

Now the company has developed the replacement of hand-operated systems for the improvement and modernization of the rural service.

SERVICE MERGER:

On Way

With President Truman throwing his full weight behind a merger of the fighting services, early congressional action on unification of the army, navy and air forces was foreseen.

Meanwhile, rougher sailing loomed on the chief executive's proposal for compulsory military training for youths 18 to 20 years of age to build up an experienced reserve adequate to meet future emergencies.

In casting his lot for the merger of the armed forces after strenuous naval objections to unification, Mr. Truman called for a single department of national defense under a civilian head, with assistants for the various branches, and a military chief of staff, with commanders from the three services. The military leaders would join with the President in an advisory council.

Maximum efficiency would result from unification, the President declared, because close co-ordination would acquaint each branch of the armed forces with the capabilities and limitations of the others, and economy would be achieved by eliminating a duplication of effort and supply.

FARM BUREAU:

Discuss Parity

Despite imperfections in the present parity formula, American farmers were urged to operative action and prevent the destruction of modern conflict.

Acting quickly on the enabling legislation, President Truman nominated the U. S. delegates to UNO, with ex-Secretary of State Edward Stettinius chosen as the representative on the all-powerful security council and senior member of the general assembly group including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Sen. Tom Connally (Dem., Texas) and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (Rep. Mich.).

Under the legislation approved, the President can enter into negotiations with the other four members of the security council of UNO for provision of military forces to suppress aggression, with freedom to permit their use after congressional sanction of the arrangements. The President also will be able to join in the imposition of economic boycotts to bring a troublemaker into line.

LABOR:

With early maneuverings for position jolted by President Truman's request for fact-finding anti-strike machinery to speed settlement of labor disputes, the CIO United Automobile Workers and major producers entered into discussions of principal issues, with Ford continuing to steal the show.

In guarded memoirs left after his suicide to prevent arrest as a war criminal, former Jap Premier Prince Konoye left some glimpses of the behind-the-scenes maneuvering that marked his country's diplomacy before the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

One of the top disclosures was Konoye's report on the evolution of a peace plan covering the Far East after unofficial negotiations in which former Postmaster General Walker and Bishop Walsh of the Catholic and Maryknoll missionaries figured with government knowledge. Sabotaged by Ultra-Nationalist Japanese officials, the plan called for Jap withdrawal from China, restriction of immigration thereto, and co-operation in the restoration of the open-door trade policy. In return the U. S. was to recognize Manchuria.

In another revelation, Konoye reported Russia's tentative agreement to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis in 1940 under inclusion of Iran and India in her sphere of influence. No concrete alliance developed, however, because of the failure of the Nazis and Reds to work out details, and the whole plan collapsed with Germany's drive to the East in 1941.

Senator Knowland's proposal is but a move in that direction. The California senator would open the books of industry to both capital and labor, and that means to the general public as well. It would make earnings the wage basis, with adjustments upward or downward at regular intervals. It would make labor a partner in industry.

With that should be coupled such regulatory legislation as is needed to make labor responsible for unjustified strikes, slowdowns and work stoppages. Regulating the partners, capital and management, would not be fair without regulation for that third partner, labor. Through such regulation that silent partner, the consumer, would get fair treatment.

FARM BUREAU: Discuss Parity

Despite imperfections in the present parity formula, American farmers were urged to retain the system by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson addressing the annual convention of the Farm Bureau in Chicago, Ill. Referring specifically to the government program for price support at 90 per cent of Anderson parity, Anderson said varying conditions for different crops might fail to promote maximum production. Even with milk at 100 per cent of parity at the 1910-14 base, output is below requirements, he said, while eggs at 90 per cent might lead to plentiful production.

Declaring that the parity formula should be based upon the 10 years preceding the present program rather than on the 1910-14 level, Edward A. O'Neal, farm bureau president, called for all agricultural groups to unite on an overall plan rather than insist on a separate system for each commodity.

Pointing up the need for additional rural health and education facilities, Senator Hill (Dem., Ala.) said that with millions of farm dollars ending up as profits in industrial districts after consumer purchases, only federal taxation and expenditures

With the UAW's Ford division having provided the first real break in the deadlock with agreement to penalize wildcat strikers hindering output, the company took one step closer toward agreement by proposing a 15-cent an hour wage increase. Despite Ford's alteration of the union's security plan and the UAW's rejection of the company's wage offer, the two propositions provided a meeting ground for a settlement somewhere between.

Meanwhile, the Sinclair-United Oil Workers (CIO) pact providing for an 18 per cent wage raise and union assurance against wildcat striking loomed as the model contract for all of industry. In arriving at a settlement, H. F. Sinclair declared that the two parties agreed that voluntary solution of disputes was preferable to government intervention, such as proposed by Mr. Truman.

SHIP SINKING: Convict Skipper

Acquitted on a charge of inefficiency in the sinking of the cruiser Indianapolis in the Pacific last July with a loss of 880 lives, Capt. Charles B. McVay was found guilty of negligence in the operation of the ship, with sentence subject to review of the secretary of the navy.

Clearance on the charge of inefficiency for not issuing timely orders to leave the vessel after it was struck by a torpedo followed McVay's testimony that he had at first believed the ship could be saved but then called for its abandonment immigration, and cooperation in the restoration of the open shop trade policy. In return the U. S. was to recognize Manchuria. In another revelation, Kossyge reported Russia's tentative agreement to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis in 1940 under inclusion of Iran and India in her sphere of influence. No objective alliance agreement, Kossyge said, exists to weaken the axis, and the whole plan collapsed with Germany's drive to the west in 1941.

Death of Mammie Priddy, 78, in Okla. Home City, Okla., from cancer, recalled his one-time occupation as a trapper, snorer, with a record of 300 accused slayers. He was employed as a show showman in Ponca, a colorful figure with long, black hair falling below his shoulders, and among the first to introduce in court practice in the Southwest.

On one occasion when the prosecution sneered at his plea of self-defense, he stood up and said, "I shot the man because he was a snake." He suddenly raised a finger and said, "I shot a snake in his back and earned an admission that the snake resembled a knife under the circumstances." After being convicted of the slaying of a baby—which he said he did not commit, Priddy resolved to snuff his own life. He died in 1941.

FARM CROPS: Year's Review

With a New Year ringing in, American farmers could look back on the old as marking the best in food grain production on record with an all-time wheat crop of 1,123,143,000 bushels featuring the harvest.

At the same time, the department of agriculture reported that feed grains were the third largest on record, though corn fell off slightly to 3,015,410,000 bushels from the 1944 figure. As a result, large quantities of feed will be available for fattening livestock and assuring the country of banner meat supplies through 1946.

Along with wheat, new records were established for oats, tobacco, rice, popcorn, hops, peaches, pears, grapefruit, almonds and fresh truck crops, while near records were set for hay, soybeans, flaxseed, potatoes, sugar cane, oranges, grapes and pecans.

THE first settlers in Ohio, remembering the nation which had materially assisted the cause of the American Revolution, named their settlement Marietta, in honor of Queen Marie Antoinette of France. This was in 1786, during the stirring years of expansion and growth following the birth of the new republic. It was a group of New Englanders, led by Mansfield Cutler and Gen. Rufus Putnam, that founded the frontier town at the confluence of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers.

Rich In Resources.

There are many empires in the state of Ohio, for it is rich in its natural resources as well as in men. The farmer's Ohio is 22 million acres of agriculture. The business offer communication with Pennsylvania and the Mississippi basin.

The manufacture of iron and steel and their products constitutes the most important industry in Ohio and settles the state to a place only below Pennsylvania. It includes the work of the blast furnaces, rolling mills and steel plants. Pig iron production in Ohio represents approximately one-fourth of the nation's total.

World Rubber Capital.

Akron is the rubber manufacturing center of the world. Cleveland and Cincinnati are the centers of the state's clothing industry. East Liverpool has one of the world's most extensive pottery works and together with other nearby towns produces about half of the nation's pottery.

Ohio ranks first in the production of tires and tubes, machine tools, stoves, ranges, furnaces, electrical appliances, printing and publishing periodicals, soap, matches, pottery and porcelain ware, pumps and pumping equipment, coflins and steam shovels.

The state ranks second in the production of motor vehicles, bodies made from ocean to ocean by English ships to various colonies along the Atlantic seaboard.

After the settlement of Marietta, a considerable migration from Virginia was directed to the southern part of Ohio. A great impetus was given to settlement when Gen. Anthony Wayne defeated the Indians at the battle of the North Star near the Maumee Falls, near Toledo, in 1818.

By an act of Congress of April 30, 1802, the territory was authorized to draft a constitution; and on February 19, 1803, Ohio was declared a state.

Edward Tiffin was elected the first governor. Republice became the first capital, and Lancaster, the first capital, while each shared Newark and Zanesville the seat of state government before it was permanently located in Columbus in 1810.

Mysterious Mounds. In prehistoric days, men must have found Ohio a good land in which to live. The Mound Builders, whose origin is as mysterious as their destiny, devoted an estimated 100,000 man-years of labor to the building of 10,000 mounds and earthworks. These village sites, fortifications and burial places remain in Ohio as the record of these ancient people.

Intermingled in the fabric of Ohio's history and romantic heritage are the French explorers, Jesuit priests, British officers, French traders and Colonial frontiersmen.

Want to swap pretensions for 1946 with Barry F. Zaneck? Last year he said that Jeanne Crain, Vivian Blaine, June Haver, William H. Macy and Dick Haymes would achieve stardom within a year. Now he predicts that Mark Stevens, Glenn Langan, Richard Conte, Nancy Guild and Rex Harrison are those most likely to achieve stardom in Hollywood during the next 12 months.

For months Dick Powell and his wife, June Allyson, have been looking forward to the day when they'd move into their remodeled Brentwood home. The work was delayed and delayed, while the Powells were evicted from one hotel and apartment after another. Came December 20, the great day—Dick had to spend it rehearsing his "Rogue's Gallery" broadcast, and June supervised the moving alone.

man's Ohio is the fourth wealthiest state in the Union. The manufacturer's Ohio is the factories, the mines, the products shipped around the world. The vacationist's Ohio provides parks, game preserves, smooth highways, 110 lakes, many rivers, good fishing, deer and small game, rugged hill country, archaeological relics such as Indian mounds, and caves, geological formations, etc.

Ohio is largely a manufacturing state, deserving this industrial prominence mainly because of its natural resources. The advantages afforded for transportation by water as well as by rail cannot be overestimated. And Joan's voice was dubbed in to replace Beverly's girlish tones.

It all sounds pretty fantastic, and nobody could be much more in the dark about the whole thing than Hedy Lamarr. The tale is that she and George Engelfield submitted to the U. S. government complete details of their own invention of a steering device for torpedoes, four years ago. The plans and model were accepted for investigation, then nothing more was heard about it. But just as Hedy was about to start work in Hunt Stromberg's "The Strange Woman," London newspapers broke a story about the invention, interfering that it was one of the war's secret weapons. Could be. But who can be blamed for thinking it's just a beautiful dream of a smart press agent?

Bob Hawk, of "Thanks to the Yanks," drew a capacity audience recently in a rather unorthodox way. Missing a plane in New Haven, Conn., en route to Boston from New York, he fell asleep in the airport waiting room. Saying It in a Big Way Overlooking the Hudson River in lower New York City, in plain view of hosts of returning Service men and women aboard ocean liners arriving in the great port, is this huge "Welcome Home." The greeting is displayed on the headquarters building of the New York Telephone Company, largest telephone building in the world, and is one of numerous tokens of welcome displayed all along the waterfront. The seven-foot high white letters are easily read from ships at any point in this mile-wide section of the river.

The victory news of the Japanese surrender brought an unprecedented wave of telephone calling over both

PHONE SYSTEM PLANS $2 BILLION PROGRAM FOR POST-WAR YEARS

Record Bell Outlay to Provide More Jobs on Large Scale; Increase Farm Lines

To meet the backed-up demand for telephones, and to add new services and extend and improve present ones, the nation-wide Bell Telephone System is mapping a two-billion dollar post-war construction program which will provide additional jobs on a large scale in the manufacture, installation and operation of telephone equipment. Extension and improvement of rural telephone service is a vital part of the program.

This major step, illustrating industry's preparation for peacetime expansion, was announced recently by Vice President Mark R. Sullivan of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. He said that the plans call for an estimated expenditure of a billion dollars immediately following the war, and another billion within a very few years. At the peak year, the outlay for construction will be as great as $450,000,000, or 50 per cent higher than the highest year immediately preceding the war. Reaching the peak will depend on how fast manpower, materials and manufacturing facilities become available.

To obtain the capital needed to carry out the program, Mr. Sullivan said that "it is vital that the System sustain its credit position, which is dependent on its earnings, now as well as in the future."

"The first aim," he asserted, "will be to provide service, without delay, for all who wish it." He referred particularly to requests for service unfulfilled because of lack of facilities.

'This is America'

In a national message to the com- and women in the pany's (A. T. & T.) Carl Whitmore, president of the New York Telephone Company, said in part:

Carl Whitmore

"As I think of the part taken by men and women during the war, I realize anew how truly hopes and experience, in activities and achievements when we say, 'This is America.'"

"Let us combine, together, to do our part in keeping this America, with all that it means in freedom to speak, to work, to learn and to achieve." The company's post-war tasks, Mr. Whitmore said, will take all the energy and skill that is interested, well-trained, unbigoted and forward-looking organization can give.

"That is the kind of organization that has given our company its high place in service and public regard," he added. "It is the kind upon which our plans are being made for the important years ahead. We have learned much from the war. Upon the experience and wisdom thus gained, we should build and serve even better in the future."

SOME ODD U. S. NAMES

Long distance telephone operators hear some curious names as they handle calls to places all over the country. For example: Bragadocio, Mo.; Barber's Cut, Tex.; Detected, Tenn.; Hobo, Ore.; and Hot Box, Okla.

Right here in New York State there are many names just as odd. For example: Big Indian, Bush, Horseheads, Painted Post, and Stone Arabia.

Round World in Second Is Radioteletype Speed

A message of nine words raced against time round the world recently by wire and air. The occasion was a radioteletypewriter test by the U. S. Army Signal Corps.

The route was from Washington, D. C., to San Francisco, Manila, New Delhi in India, Amara in Northeast Africa, and so back to Washington.

Automatic relays handled the message at the intermediate points, passing it instantly to the next station.

Only one second intervened between the time the transmitting machine started to print and the receiving machine began its copy of the message.

However, eight and one-half seconds were required to feed the nine words into the transmitter. Thus the complete message was "back home" in nine and one-half seconds. This equals the fastest time ever made by a human messenger over a mere hundred yards.

The one-millionth visitor to the USO in Birmingham, Ala., was awarded a free telephone call anywhere in the United States. The soldier winner, a veteran of the Aleutians, said: "I'd like to call my home—a nickel will do it." He lived a mile away.

'MOST IN MUSIC'

The George F. Peabody award for the radio program "providing the most entertainment in music in 1944" recently went to the "Telephone Hour" program of the Bell Telephone System, chosen because of "the excellent standard it sets in presenting the greatest living artists performing the best music." Special appreciation was expressed for the five Fritz Kreisler broadcasts, the first ever made by the great violinist. He will appear with the "Telephone Hour" again next season, according to a recent announcement.

New Telecart Speeds Up Calls for Wounded GIs

After Signal Corps

This wounded GI at Camp Shankle, N. Y., is using the newest type of telecart for handling telephone calls of Service men confined to beds in Army and Navy hospitals. Designed by engineers of the New York Telephone Company and initially installed at the hospital, this equipment speeds up handling calls to the "folks back home." For it really provides two telephones which can be used simultaneously for making and expediting calls.

Though it resembles a tea wagon, this telecart is a miniature telephone switchboard on wheels. When its connecting cord is plugged in to the nearest wall jack, the call goes directly from the hospital to the nearest long distance center—in this case Yonkers. Using one of the telecart telephones, the telephone company's attendant helps put through the call. Meanwhile, by flipping a switch, she may help complete a call for another patient.

 In New York City, from 7 to 11 o'clock on the night of the announcement, there were some 4,000,000 calls, an average of 800,000 per hour, a total never before approached for a similar period. Next day, 11,118,500 calls were handled in the city, most of them in the morning, or well over 3,000,000 calls above normal for the day.
 An estimated record-breaking 27,000 long distance telephone conversations were made over the Bell System's nation-wide Long Lines network on the day of the announcement, though the definite news came only towards the end of the business day.

Outwitting the Weather
 Though unable directly to influence the elements, men of the U. S. Army Signal Corps have shown great ingenuity in minimizing the effects of weather upon their equipment. For example, to protect their telephone and radio batteries from the hot, humid climate in the jungles of the Solomon Islands and New Guinea, members of the Corps built underground refrigerating units. These units were given added insulation by surrounding them with layers of sawdust, obtained from lumber used for Army buildings in the area.

N. Y. GIRL IN WAC OVERSEAS AWARDED BRONZE STAR MEDAL

"For meritorious service in connection with military operations in Italy," WAC Sergeant "Peggy" Forsythe, of Jackson Heights, L. I., employee of the telephone company in New York City, was recently awarded the Bronze Star Medal.
 As message center chief at the Signal Center, Army Headquarters, according to the citation, "Sergeant Forsythe trained teletype and message center clerks to a high level of efficiency and welded them into a smoothly operating team."

Resourceful signalmen of the Marines converted a downed Jap plane into a telephone pole after gunfire had leveled the trees on a Pacific Isle.

York City recently. An emergency in a soldier's family led his uncle to try to reach him at camp by long distance telephone. But the engineer was away on leave.
 The telephone operator asked questions. Maybe the soldier was in Washington, the uncle said, or in a certain town in North Carolina, or in Virginia. All three places were tried without success.
 One more place to try—New York City. Friends there might give a clue. Soon the one sought for was on the line.
 Later the uncle wrote a letter to the telephone company about this "all-out-hold," as he called it, and added: "This sympathetic and courteous service when the lines are heavily taxed, is, I'm told, regular service, but it should have recognition."

How to Get Locked Up
 A merchant seaman with a pocketful of nickels entered a telephone booth in a New York cigar store recently with an urge to have a long and leisurely conversation with a girl friend. The conversation was so lengthy, in fact, that the store was closed before he hung up. It took one of his few remaining nickels to call the police, who came to his rescue.

HASN'T PROFITED BY WAR, PHONE COMPANY REPORTS
 Although its volume of business was never greater than during the past three war years, the New York Telephone Company states in its annual report for 1944, recently issued, that its earnings on invested capital during these years averaged only 6.5 per cent. This compares with earnings averaging 6.5 per cent during the three preceding years and is less than in any peacetime year in two decades.
 "The company," comments the report, "has not profited by the war." It cites both the marked rise in expenses during the war years and the fact that, unlike many other prices, the overall trend of telephone rates has been downward for ten years, including drastic cuts in long distance rates.

With the advent of 1940, the local Christmas Seal Committee urges this resolution for the New Year: "I will look up my Christmas Seals and pay for them at once."

"There are a number of our friends from whom we have not yet heard, A. C. Adams of Chicago. The best way to ward off the grip is to get every name to which Christmas Seals are mailed and the number sent. We can complete our report on the health of the community. We must account for every seal mailed out. We know that a number of seals were probably mailed and have been forgotten in the Christmas rush. Now is the time to remember them. "Next little reminder" are being mailed this week by the Allegany County Public Health and Welfare Association to all persons who have received Christmas Seals but have not yet made reply."

"We urge those who can make a contribution for Anti-tuberculosis work to do so at once. Those who cannot afford to keep their seals are asked to help the Committee complete its work by returning the seals to them at once."

"The Committee has important tuberculosis work to be done next year and every cent we can afford is needed so that our program will not be at a standstill. Among the projects to be continued are: Health Education, Health Camp and careful follow-up, Tuberculin Testing and X-ray, Syphilis Control and Diphtheria Immunization."

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

A MAN NAMED CAXTON

YOU may not remember ever hearing the name of William Caxton, but it was his life which makes your life today comfortable. He it was who introduced printing into England. This was in 1476. The introduction of printing has made all progress possible.

It wasn't until 1638 that America had a printing press, this at Harvard university, but after that printing grew, and newspapers sprang up, and modern American life began.

The printing press is the forerunner of knowledge wherever it is introduced. The printed word, even to this day, has no rival as a quick means of disseminating vital facts and ideas.

The newspaper of today is one of the modern wonders of the world. It is the broadest, quickest, most flexible and most economical way of getting a message into the minds of the people.

Early in our national history, manufacturers and merchants sensed this power of the press. They began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into the homes.

These early advertisers were careful business men. The fact that Clarke of Independence, Mr. and Mrs. Decatur Clarke and baby of Canisteo left Andover to spend several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blaine in Washington, D. C.

The newspaper would complete the educational process for their message wasn't enough. It also had to do the job at less cost than any other medium.

And they found, after many trials in different fields, that it did get their message to prospective buyers in a manner which was economical as well as effective.

Today this same condition is unchanged. Advertisers, using newspapers year in and year out, find it the most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers.

The reason is simple. The newspaper is the great common denominator of modern life. It reaches practically every family. It has the confidence of its readers. It stands for everything which is right and good and modern.

The advertisements in your newspaper are as much a part of its vital importance as the editorial and the news columns.

As a matter of fact, most readers find it hard to tell what interests them most—the commercial news, which is called advertising and which touches their lives every day, or the general news, in news story, editorial and cartoon.

They're both valuable. This man named Caxton was one of the great benefactors of mankind. He lighted the lamp—and it is still burning bright, though centuries have fled since he lived.

the marriage of Miss Elizabeth N.
 Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
 Robert McKnight of Highland Park,
 Illinois, to Alford Nathan Annas, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Nell Annas of DeKalb, Illinois.

The ceremony took place in the Chapel of the Holy Grail of the Uni-campus of Chicago University.

The marriage vows were pro-

 Anna, the pastor of the church, and Dean Emeritus of the Department of Philosophy of the University of Chicago, in the presence of the immediate families and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom.

The bride entered the chapel on the arm of her father and was attended by her cousin, Miss Anne Linn of Chicago. The best man was Edward Martin of Detroit, a close friend and college chum of the groom at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

A fine program of organ music preceded the music of the national tercentenary and the ceremony throughout while the vows were being taken.

The chapel was simply but beautifully decorated with white poinsettias and white chrysanthemums. A small white tree, commemorative of the session stood on either side of the chancel and the seven branched candlesticks were burning at either side of the altar.

Today this same condition is unchanged. Advertisers, using newspapers year in and year out, find the most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. The reason is simple. The newspaper is the great common denominator of modern life. It reaches practically every family. It has the confidence of its readers. It stands for everything which is right and good and modern. The advertisements in your newspaper are as much a part of its vital importance as the editorial and the news-columns. As a matter of fact, most readers find it hard to tell what interests them most—the commercial news which is called advertising and which touches their lives every day, or the general news, in news stories, editorial and cartoon. They're both valuable. This man named Caxton was one of the great benefactors of mankind. He lighted the lamp—and it is still burning bright, though centuries have fled since he lived.

Government Is Promoting Sorghum Breakfast Food

The department of agriculture is promoting a new breakfast food, made from grain sorghums.

The grains, feterita, kafir and milo, are said to compare favorably with corn and wheat cereals in taste and nutritional value.

Increasing popularity of the new cereal is predicted by the department's food experts. The Farm Security administration has instructed its home demonstration agents to introduce it among low-income farm families.

Tests made by the department showed the food value of grain sorghums only slightly below corn and wheat. Raw, white corn has 1,768 calories per pound, while feterita has 1,738. Wheat has 1,075 per pound.

"In the light of these facts, the Farm Security administration considers itself on safe ground in sponsoring the grain sorghums as a food, though there are many things we would like to know," an official said.

The circumstances which prompted the FSA to sponsor the new food were largely financial. Grain sorghums...

Three-Mile Limit

The idea of a three-mile limit of jurisdiction off the coast was first set down by Hugo Grotius, a brilliant Dutch lawyer, in 1608, in his "Mare Liberum," wherein he observed that the sovereignty and jurisdiction of any state extended as far over the marginal seas "as those who sail in that part of the sea can be compelled from the shores as if they were on land." A little later Cornelius van Bykershoek, a judge of the supreme court of appeal of Holland, in his "De Dominion Maris Dissertatio," Caput II, pages 364, 365, expressed Grotius' idea by saying that the control of the land over the sea extends as far as a cannon will carry and that "the control from the land ends where the power of men's weapons ends."

lo, are said to compare favorably with corn and wheat cereals in taste and nutritional value.

Increasing popularity of the new cereal is predicted by the department's food experts. The Farm Security administration has instructed its home demonstration agents to introduce it among low-income farm families.

Tests made by the department showed the food value of grain sorghums only slightly below corn and wheat. Raw, white corn has 1,768 calories per pound while sorghum has 1,728 calories per pound.

"In the light of these facts, the Farm Security administration considers itself on safe ground in sponsoring the grain sorghums as a food, though there are many things we would like to know," an official said.

The circumstances which prompted the FSA to sponsor the new food were largely financial. Grain sorghum is the cheapest source of several food elements. It is grown extensively in the Southwest.

The grain sorghums may be used as a breadstuff as well as a breakfast cereal. When finely ground it makes an excellent muffin, the food experts said. They have demonstrated their qualities in scores of communities.

The grain sorghums constitute a breadstuff more wholesome and less expensive than white flour customarily used, a FSA report said. The flavor is a surprise to people who have considered such grains largely as an economy measure.

"Old Red Barn"

The "old red barn"—so much a part of our national heritage—owes its color to a thrifty New England custom that originated before the Revolution. In these days, reports Frederic Rahr, color consultant for the House of Outside Color exhibition in New York, and designer of many new asphalt shingle blends and colors, it was the custom to paint almost all buildings with an undercoat of a red-earth paint called "Spanish brown." A final coat of some light bodied paint was then applied over it. The frugal colonists, however, frequently omitted the final coat on barns and other "utilitarian" buildings. Barns, as a result, remained red, and remain red to this day in many parts of the country.

Great respect for a stranger's privacy was shown 200 years ago by Massachusetts Bay colony. The WPA historical records survey found that the colonial laws of June 1638, provided that the governor or deputies could hear and determine all actions concerning strangers, either by jury trial or otherwise. This was to dispatch speedily cases of visitors who could not remain to attend ordinary courts of justice.

Balloon Test Flights Aid Airplane Pilots

Meteorologists who watch various colored balloons float into the sky are responsible for the most accurate method devised for guiding airplane pilots through hazardous winds, according to Robert F. Corwin, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute meteorologist.

The new technique, with its narrow margin of error, is expected to prevent fliers from encountering violent up winds and treacherous downdrafts that sometimes suck pilots into mountaintops. Pilots will know at which levels they may fly to avoid the currents.

Corwin said that the new method utilized a geometrical principle, determining a distance through angles. Weather observers at present base calculations on an assumption that balloons always rise about 600 feet per minute.

Corwin and two student assistants, at the request of the United States weather bureau, for months sent colored balloons into the air and observed their flight to heights of five miles and distances of from 10 to 17 miles.

It was found that "up and down" winds accelerated, slowed, or even reversed, the balloons' normal rate of climb. Thus, the Rensselaer findings showed, the pilot of an airplane might encounter violent winds by trying to avoid them, because winds, reported at 10,000 feet, might really be at 8,000 or 12,000 feet.

The new method utilizes a small balloon tied by a 100-foot line to the main "sounding" balloon. A special theodolite, similar to those used by weather observers and surveyors to study angles, would then measure the angle between it and the two balloons. Calculations then determine to within relatively few feet their height.

Worship of Sun Linked To Stone Age Farmers

Worship of the sun as a distinct object apparently did not start until the new Stone age, when man had developed a crude agriculture. In the old Stone age all nature was looked upon as "a great human ghost," the spirits of the dead were supposed to enter into natural objects and the trees, animals, rocks and clouds were endowed with human qualities.

With the advent of crops regularly sown and harvested, the one natural object upon which these crops depended was singled out for special reverence, writes a correspondent to the Wisconsin Star. A great wealth of sun symbols is first noted in this period of pre-history. The paintings and carvings of old Stone age men show no designs that can be connected directly with the sun.

Worship of the sun has gone around the earth. It was a prominent part of the religion of ancient Egypt, where at one time it was refined into a monotheistic system which ranks as one of the world's great religions. It was almost universal among American Indian tribes, reaching its greatest refinement among the Incas of Peru, where the rulers were supposed to be directly descended from the sun. The Japanese ruling family traces its mythological descent from the same source.

Twinkling Stars

The twinkling of stars is a rapid shaking or vibration of their light caused mainly by the turmoil of the atmosphere—currents and strata of different temperatures intermingling and flowing past one another. A star's light seems to come from a mere point, so that when its rays are scattered by irregular refraction, at one instant very few rays reach the eye, and at another many. This accounts for the seeming changes of brightness in a twinkling star. Ordinarily the bright planets are not seen to twinkle because of their large apparent disks, made up of a multitude of points, which therefore maintain a general average of brightness.

Chemical Treatment for Fish

Chemical treatment of freshwater fish to produce fish preparations similar to those made out of sea fish has been proposed in Hungary, according to the American Chemical society. The purified fish is freed of scales, disintegrated, and soaked in a solution containing common salt, calcium sulfate, magnesium sulfate, magnesium chloride, ferric oxide, and alum in amounts which saturate the fish with the components of salt water. The treatment softens the bones of freshwater fish at the same time.

Early U. S. Justice
 Great respect for a strange custom was shown 200 years ago in Massachusetts Bay colony. WPA historical records suggest that the colonial laws of Jan. 25, 1639, provided that the governor's deputies could hear and decide all actions concerning slaves, either by jury trial or otherwise. This was to dispatch special cases of visitors who could not remain to attend ordinary court sessions of Elmira.

Recalls Industry's Start
More than 4,000 makes of automobiles have appeared on the market of the world since France introduced the first in 1888, the Smithsonian institution reports.

The rapid rise of the industry, as manufacturers of everything from bird cages to guns turned their factories into automobile plants, was reflected in a loan exhibit of the institution prepared by Frank Walker of Pontiac, Mich. Walker is making a collection of name plates from as many cars as possible. His exhibit consists of the plates he has collected.
The French idea of an automobile propelled by an internal combustion engine had spread to Austria, Great Britain and Italy by 1889, with a general broadening of scope until it reached Belgium, Switzerland and the United States, where the development has seen its greatest extension. Two-thirds of the 300 cars on the market in 1875 were extinct within 25 years, however. Spain's first car had a belated appearance in 1902.
A boom came in 1905 and 1906 when Hungarians, Danes, Russians, Swedes, Austrians and Canadians entered the field. Indications pointed to the industry taking its place in the future.

ALFRED COOPERATIVE PICTURES

THURSDAY ONLY—"HOTEL FOR WOMEN" with Elsa Maxwell, Ann Baskett, James Ellison, and many others. There is a new plot picture not full of good moments. It seems to be something a lot of good situations regarding a "hotel" for women as we are passing it on to you for your approval. Alfred has a high class musical, "Parky's Hotel" and "A Dog is Bury". Shows at 7:00, 9:00. Feature at 11:00.

SATURDAY ONLY—"DISPUTED PASSAGE" with John Howard, Aida Tammara, and Dorothy Lamour. This is from the celebrated novel by Lloyd C. Douglas and is first class in every respect. The picture is well thought out and is an emotional treat. We are sorry this is being run during vacation because everyone should see it. However, it was necessary to run it at this time. The management gives this a personal recommendation. Also "Paramount News," "Stamp Collecting as a Hobby," "The Bear That Could Not Sleep." Shows at 7:00 and 9:00. Feature at 11:00 and 9:30.

Car Nameplate Collection Recalls Industry's Start

More than 4,000 makes of automobiles have appeared on the markets of the world since France introduced the first in 1888, the Smithsonian Institution reports.

The rapid rise of the industry, as manufacturers of everything from bird cages to guns turned their factories into sudden ruin for most of them. The course of the industry is reflected in a loan exhibit of the institution prepared by Frank Walker of Pontiac, Mich. Walker is making a collection of name plates from as many cars as possible. His exhibit consists of the plates he has collected.

The French idea of an automobile propelled by an internal combustion engine had spread to Austria, Great Britain and Italy by 1889, with a general broadening of scope until it reached Belgium, Switzerland and the United States, where the industry has seen its greatest development. Two-thirds of the 300 cars on the market in 1875 were extinct within 25 years, however, Spain's had a belated appearance

A boom came in 1905 and 1906 when Hungarians, Danes, Russians, Swedes, Austrians and Canadians entered the field. Indications pointed to the industry taking its place as the great industry of the future, causing makers of bicycles, guns, sewing machines, telephones and typewriters to convert their factories into automobile plants.

The result was ruin for many. The market for the relatively crude and expensive machines were restricted to the wealthy and near-wealthy. Only those makers with new fundamental ideas to incorporate into their products survived.

Juvenile Delinquency Blamed for U. S. Crime

Placing the crime cost in the United States at $15,000,000,000 a year and declaring that a losing war is being waged against it, Superior Judge F. M. Golden told the Northern California Mental Hygiene society recently that juvenile delinquency was primarily responsible.

"Social and scientific treatment of juvenile offenders in order to cope with the crime problem," he said, "is one of the most serious problems confronting American life today."

"It is definitely clear that we must get at the roots of the causes of crime and take steps to eradicate them, if we hope successfully to tackle the problem."

He insisted that it is not enough to punish the criminal; that punishment, in reality, accomplishes little, and cures nothing.

"We must prevent the commission of crime to the utmost possible extent," he declared, "and this we cannot do unless we exercise supervision, social and scientific, on the youth of the land. And this must be done at the first time a boy or girl shows the need for such supervision."

"For the moment the most discouraging and terrifying phase of the problem is that the large increase in juvenile offenders is principally responsible. It is plain that we are not meeting the problem by the present methods."

Judge Golden declared that the first step toward new and effective methods must lie in teaching the abnormal or problem child how to meet the strains and stresses of life.

Dogs

1939 Dog Licenses Expire on December 31, 1939
The 1940 License Fee is Due January 1st

Every dog must wear a tag of identification each year. A dog without such a tag is not protected by law, and no action can be maintained for its injury or destruction.

An unlicensed dog may be seized and killed and the fact that a dog is without a tag is presumptive evidence that the dog is harbored or kept.

Dog licenses may be obtained from the clerk of the city or town where the dog is harbored or kept.

License fees are as follows:
MALE DOG $2.00
FEMALE DOG $1.50
SPAYED FEMALE DOG $1.00

No license can be issued for less than the full license fee.

The owner of a dog who fails or refuses to obtain a license for that dog as required by law incurs a penalty of $10 and costs.

The enumerators of towns and the police departments of cities are required to prepare in January of each year a list of dog owners. The omission of the name of an owner from the enumerator's or police list will not excuse the owner from obtaining a license.

If you owned a dog last year and do not own one now, so advise the clerk of your town or city.

Dog licenses in the town of Alfred are issued by F. A. Crumb, clerk at The Sun Office.

"For the moment the most discouraging and terrifying phase of the problem is that the large increase in juvenile offenders is principally responsible. It is plain that we are not meeting the problem by the present methods."

Judge Golden declared that the first step toward new and effective methods must lie in teaching the abnormal or problem child how to meet the strains and stresses of everyday life as he grows into manhood.

"It is a question," the judge asserted, "that must be approached from a medical, social, psychological and psychiatric standpoint."

"To this end, institutions, sanitariums and paraphernalia, both human and mechanical, must be provided. Psychiatrists, sociologists, social-service workers, dentists and physicians must co-operate with courts and district attorneys at the first sign that a child is a source of worry to his parents or his teacher.

"All of this will cost money, but it will cost less than what crime is now costing the United States."

Bluffing Wrong Judge Lands Motorist in Jail

If 30-year-old Isaac Barker of Detroit, Mich., had known how much a new-born baby weighed he would not have had to serve five days in the Wayne county jail for reckless driving.

But he didn't know, Traffic Judge excused F. Maher discovered.

Barker was charged in court with having made an improper right turn some months ago. He had not appeared in court in the intervening time.

His explanation to the judge was that he had had to stay at home to mind his recently born baby. Judge Maher released him. As Barker reached the door of the court attending college, running a household or employed in full-time job, it was announced by Mrs. Harrison Davis, founder and president of the Seeing Eye school. Twenty per cent of the graduates are salesmen, according to the survey; 18 per cent stand operators, 13 per cent stenographers, 8 per cent hand industry workers, 7 per cent home teachers and 8 per cent "progressives." With 12 per cent in normal pursuits or holding full-time positions, it would appear that they probably have a better record than the grown-up population of the country as a whole," Mrs. Davis said. "It is not the work of the Seeing Eye to find employment, so we do not claim credit for this success."

Baptist Church Origin

According to the American Baptist History society, the Baptist denomination had its origin in 1606, among English exiles in Amsterdam, Holland. The leader and pastor of this group was John Smyth. Associated with him was Thomas Helwys, who returned to England about 1611 and established the first Baptist church of England at Southwark, London, of which he was pastor. It is generally recognized that Roger Williams established the first Baptist church of America in Providence, R. I., in 1633.

Attec National Monument

Attec Ruins National monument, New Mexico, represents the zenith of pueblo civilization. Of the 500 original rooms contained in the great communal dwelling 24 are still in a fine state of preservation. Known dates of Attec Ruins extend from 1115 to 1325 A. D. At this monument is located the only reconstructed kiva in the Southwest. A large number of "clay kivas," also included in Attec Ruins, offer excellent facilities to the student archeologist to gather connected data on the development of kivas.

Compared, it has held up more almost unscathed and this will be going for you and your family when they reach their final destination.

EVEN YOUR BEST FRIEND WON'T TELL YOU

You yourself might easily have halitosis (bad breath), without ever suspecting it for it's often due to food fermentation in the mouth, and the subject is so delicate that even your best friend wouldn't tell you.

That's the insidious thing about this condition. Nearly everybody offends at some time or other - usually without suspecting it. Are you positive your breath is fresh and pure right now?

Listerine Antiseptic quickly kills this fermentation, and by some authorities to be a major cause of odors, then overcomes the odors themselves. So why take unnecessary risks? It is so pleasant and easy to guard against offending - just gargle with Listerine Antiseptic.

Get in the habit of using Listerine morning and night, and before all important engagements. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo.

'The Sailor's Friend'
Samuel Plimsoll was known as "the sailors' friend." Through his occupation as a coal dealer he became interested in the condition of sailors, and the dangers to which they were exposed by unscrupulous overloading of heavily insured vessels. This induced him to enter parliament in 1868 as member from Derby. In 1873 he published "Our Seamen," which succeeded in its purpose of arousing public attention, and in 1876 the Merchant Shipping act, embodying many of his demands, was passed. Among its provisions was the load line known as "Plimsoll's line," which has since been marked on all ships.

Tests for Diamonds
The common test for diamonds is the file, which will cut imitations but not a real diamond. A drop of water on the face of a diamond, moved about with the point of a pin, will retain its globular form; immersed in water the diamond will shine and be distinctly visible. An aluminum pencil makes a mark on a real diamond that is easily removed by rubbing; on an imitation the mark remains after rubbing. These are a few specific tests; others are based on specific gravity, hardness, refractio and dispersion of light.

"What's your little brother crying about?"
"He's dug a hole in the yard and he wants to bring it in the house to play with."—Exchange.

Teacher: "Willie, how do you do fine ignorance?"
Willie: "Its when you don't know something and someone finds it out."

Although the job of raising next year's crop of pullets seems far off, it is not too early to plan to get chicks that will insure healthy, vigorous well-bred flocks of pullets next fall.
